League Timid, War Like-ly
Cheer Up Britain
The Fighting B and O
Socialism Americanized

PROF. BARNES of Smith College says there are more causes for war now than there were in 1914, and greater danger of war, and the League of Nations is too timid to do much.

Borah, not Kellogg, wrote the Paris peace pact. A Chicago lawyer, Salmon O. Levinson, invented it.

And Barnes agrees with Prof. Bochard of Yale that the Kellogg pact, in cold reality, "contains the first international indorsement and moral recognition of certain forms of war."

The learned Barnes says the next 50 years will decide whether democracy or dictatorship shall survive.

That has already been decided 1000 times. When finally decided, democracy will win. Dictatores die, democracy lives on, always ready to lick up.

If you think the League of Nations can do anything, ask yourself why it does not stop Russia's attacks on China, with poor China yelling for help.

The answer is that the league is afraid of Russia. Nations in the league would not dare send their men to get killed for China's sake. The men would not go.

They hope this foolish country will do that. But it will not.

But we shall soon be in the world court, with "reservations," that have no force, and the next step will be costly trouble.

You might write your two United States senators what you think about it if you happen to know their names. But that probably would do no good.

We are destined to get a little more international education. The last lesson cost us two billions lent, and fifty billions spent by ourselves and our new dollar a year patriotteers.

We ought to stay out of the league, and out of the world court, which is a league back door, and attend to our own business. But we shall not do that.

The British, in comic opera fashion, object to American activities near the South Pole. Plaintively, one British editor complains that Byrd went down there "without no much as a by your leave." Britain, of course, was supposed to give us leave to visit the Antarctic.

It may comfort our interesting, some time preposterous cousins, to know that Byrd's latest flight gives us no claim to the South Pole.

To claim new territory the discoverer must land, plant the flag of his country on the new soil, claiming it in the name of king or government.

Byrd only flew around near the pole in a circle and perhaps flew over it. That does not make us owners of the Pole.

However, that is nothing to worry us. In its slow, circular motion, the Pole moves around, through the thousands of years, pointing at various stars, which in turn become the polar star. In a few thousand years today's polar regions may be warm, fertile, habitable, as they were ages ago. By that time men, by blood mixture, may have come to form one race, and one nation on this small globe, with their fighting ended.

When William the conqueror went to England he found many nations dividing those islands. Now one nation rules there.

What happened to the British Islands may happen to this larger island, the earth.

The Interstate Commerce Commission plans to reduce the country's railroads to 18 or 19 systems with five big trunk lines to the East.

The 19 systems are about 13 too many. One would be enough, with our whole railroad men working at it.

Under the calm surface of high railroad management, there is an interesting struggle, with brother Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio, who can be wicked by trying to get more than his share of the National railroad pudding.

In the old days of Gould and Vanderbilt railroad powers fought more roughly, but no more determinedly than such men as Willard and Atterbury, fight for their systems. The Pennsylvania and New York Central don't want it, don't believe it, perhaps. But some day they will wake to find Willard and the B. and O. with a Manhattan Island Terminal.

Sad news for Russia and all European wild ones that want the proletariat, the workers, to "arise, and throw off their chains," take Karl Marx for prophet, and Stalin for earthly director.

Seven Injured in Crash of Autos at Funeral

FIGHT TO SAVE TRIPPI

OFFICIALS VICTIMS IN ACCIDENT

Mishap Occurs in Everett as Capt. Sullivan Is Borne to His Final Rest

Seven persons, including six Boston fire department officials riding in the funeral cortege bearing Capt. Florence J. Sullivan of Engine 32, Charlestown, to his resting place in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, were injured today in a collision at the junction of Broadway and Bow st., Everett.

Capt. Sullivan sacrificed his life in a South End fire Saturday while trying to save a mother and her daughter.

As the funeral cortege wended its way along Broadway, Everett, today, an automobile owned and operated by G. Murdock McDonald of Massachusetts ave., Boston, coming out of Bow st., crashed into a limousine in which the six fire department officials were riding.

The impact was so severe that the limousine was pushed out of line into another automobile owned and operated by Myer Stevak of 5 Naving st., Roxbury.

INJURED IN CRASH.

The fire officials riding in the limousine were so severely shaken by the crash that they did not continue to the cemetery. They went home. They are:

Capt. Charles Ingersoll, Ladder 22, Charlestown.

Capt. Francis B. Shannon, Engine 43, Andrew sq., South Boston.

Capt. William A. S. Hughes, Engine 33, Broadway.

Capt. Thomas D. Brown, Ladder 8, Fort Hill sq.

Lieut. Timothy J. Heffron, Ladder 9, Charlestown.

Lieut. O'Brien.

In addition to the firemen who were shaken, Mr. Stevak was slightly injured in the right knee and left ankle.

McDonald, driver of the automobile that crashed into the funeral car, was taken to Everett police headquarters, questioned and permitted to leave.

Harold Brewster of 3 Bicknell ave., Boston, driver of the machine in which the injured firemen were riding, was not hurt.

More than 100 firemen marched from Capt. Sullivan's home in Charlestown to St. Francis de Sales church, where services were held, and later to the grave.

As the cortege passed the engine house of the hero captain bells tolled, the apparatus stood facing the street and beside it, bareheaded, stood Chief Daniel Sennot, Deputy Chief Henry Powers and members of Sullivan's company who were unable to attend the services.

COMRADES IN TRIBUTE

Representatives of all city departments were in the throng at the church. Rev. Mark C. Driscoll, pastor, was celebrant of the mass. Rev. William H. Deacon was deacon and Rev. William V. Chamberlain was sub-deacon. Seated in the sanctuary was Rev. Daniel F. Gorman of Lynn.

At the head of a detail of 100 firemen in the cortege from the church marched District Chief Philip A. Tierney, Henry Krake and John McDonough.

Behind the hearse marched Lieut. Walter Corwin and 11 members of Engine 32. The pallbearers were Captains Thomas Brown, Ladder 8; Charles Ingersoll, Ladder 22; Hugh Goodfellow, Engine 8; Alonzo Hughes, Engine 33; George Doyle, Ladder 15 and Francis Shannon, Engine 43.

Details of Everett and Malden firemen met the cortege as it entered those cities, escorting the body to the gates of Holy Cross.

Tinkham in Lobby Inquiry

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Chairman Caraway said today an opportunity would be given Representative Tinkham (R.), Massachusetts, to appear before the Senate lobby committee to testify in regard to his request that the committee investigate the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Federal Council of Churches.

Caraway expects to call Tinkham in the near future. The Massachusetts member in a letter to Caraway asked that the committee "unmask the indefensible political activities" of the two organizations.

Tinkham in the communication asserted the organization had attempted to influence legislation and the actions of government departments which, he said, "would inevitably lead to the destruction of religion with its beneficent inhibitions upon human conduct and therefore must result in lawlessness and crime, in social chaos and ultimately in revolution."

Registration of all lobbyists was asked in a bill today by Rep. Tinkham.

SPIRIT HEALER GETS JAIL TERM

Rev. George E. Griswold, pastor of the First Spiritualist Church of Cambridge, was sentenced in East Cambridge court today to one year in jail.

He was found guilty of larceny of $130.16 accepted for spiritual healing by the laying on of hands on a woman and child.

He was charged with the larceny after he had failed to impress Capt. John J. Canney with his power in a personal demonstration at the Central sq. police station.

In sentencing him, Judge Arthur P. Stone remarked: "Yours is a peculiar and aggravating way of robbing people of their money."

Rev. Griswold appealed the sentence and was held in $200.

John Colarusso of Western ave., Cambridge, was the victim of the alleged larceny to the extent of $72.06 and $58.16 for services in his

RUSH TAX SLASH BILL IN NEW CONGRESS

Introduced in First Minute of Session, and House May Pass It Thursday

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—The administration's proposal for a $160,000,000 tax reduction, to be effected by a 1 per cent cut in the rates on individual and corporation incomes, today was presented to the new session of Congress before it was a minute old.

Chairman Hawley of the House Ways and Means Committee actually presented a resolution to provide for the reduction before Speaker Longworth had called the House to order. It, however, could not be classed as an official measure until the thump of his mallet had rung throughout the chamber.

Under customary procedure the resolution was referred back to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration. This committee first must pass on all revenue legislation as the Constitution provides that the House alone can initiate such proposals.

TAX BILL TO BE RUSHED.

Hawley has announced he hopes to have it approved by the committee and called up in the House for action before the week-end. Democrats have indicated they will co-operate.

In the Senate leaders also are prepared to expedite consideration. The hope has been expressed in many quarters that the measure will be in the hands of the President before the Christmas recess.

The measure provides for a flat 1 per cent reduction on corporations and normal individual incomes of 1929. Corporation taxes would be reduced from 12 to 11 per cent and the individual income taxes would be reduced 1 per cent according to the amount of income.

The resolution would take effect as of January, 1929.

Hearings on it will be held by

Fear Two Hunters Drowned; Find Boat

St. Albans, Vt., Dec. 2 (AP)—Hope for the safety of two duck hunters who started from South Hero Friday in a small out-board motorboat waned today after the empty craft had been washed ashore at Hathaway Point on Lake Champlain.

The men were Louis Rosen, telegrapher for the Rutland Railroad at Grand Isle, and Ernest Billings of Philadelphia, who, with his wife, was visiting at Grand Isle over Thanksgiving.

COUNCIL BEATS COURTHOUSE MEASURE

Mayor Loses in Fight to Have Bill Approved; Dec. 31 Is the Deadline

By a vote of 10 to 8, the City Council, in executive session, failed to accept the legislative act providing $5,000,000 for construction of a courthouse in Boston or extension of the present one in Pemberton sq.

The council voted tonight not to pass on the order of Mayor Nichols to provide the necessary funds for additional room at the courthouse.

Although the order was scheduled to come up before the council again today in open session, indications were that the mayor had failed to get sufficient votes to insure passage of the order.

NICHOLS' FIGHT VAIN

A 2/3 vote is necessitive as it is considered a stiff defeat to Mayor Nichols. Although the mayor did not actively interest himself in acceptance of the act when City Councillor Robert G. Wilson introduced the first order for acceptance last August, he was in the forefront of those advocating favorable action during last week partly because of the request of President Hoover and Gov. Allen for consideration of as many public buildings as possible to keep prosperity at a high level.

For several hours before the council went into executive session today it was obvious the administration was using every possible effort toward success of the order.

DEC. 31 IS DEADLINE

Many councillors visited the mayor's office at his request, but the arguments of the city's chief executive apparently had little effect, as it was said that few councillors, Gallagher and Fish, changed their votes at the last minute against the order.

It is known that Gov. Allen strongly urged Mayor Nichols to do his utmost to get acceptance of the act in order that work on the courthouse might begin at once.

Under the terms of the act it must be accepted by the council by Dec. 31 or it lapses.

HORWEEN STAYS AT HARVARD

Arnold Horween will return as head football coach at Harvard next fall. The former Crimson backfield star, who has been varsity grid mentor for four years, informed Bill Bingham, athletic director, of his decision this afternoon.

Immediately following this announcement, the Harvard athletic men met and elected Ben Tickner, star center, as captain.

Tickner, a New York boy, is a junior. For the past two seasons he had been the regular center. He was the outstanding Crimson lineman all this fall and an almost unanimous "all" choice. He succeeds Jim Barrett as captain. His election was unanimous.

Horween will continue to have complete charge of football just as he has had since taking over the job in 1926. His choice of assistants will have to be approved, but all aides he selects will be accepted.

Since Horween has been coach at Harvard, the Crimson has beaten Yale twice and has lost twice to the Elis. With most of this year's Harvard varsity eleven due back next fall, the chances of another win over the ancient rival from New Haven appears particularly bright at this time, and it is because of this that the coach decided to neglect his big leather business in Chicago for another season, his friends believe.

Be Goodfellow! Help Spread Xmas Cheer!

"Please give my five 'ollars to some little boy or girl who has no Daddy to buy Christmas presents."

All summer long Josephine Preiss, nine, of East Fifth st., South Boston, ran errands for a neighbor. The girl saved up her nickles and dimes to buy a Christmas present for her mother and father.

Today the Boston Evening American received a letter from the girl, enclosing a money order for five dollars for the "Goodfellow" fund for Christmas aid to needy Boston families.

The girl's letter said: "I am giving in $5 for the Christmas Goodfellow club. I have earned that money during the summer months. Please tell Santa Claus to give some toys to the children whose fathers may be dead, sick or out of work and whose daddy cannot make a happy Christmas. Happy Christmas to all."

The Goodfellow editor of the Boston Evening American made a visit to this little school girl, the first one this year to send in money for the fund for boys and girls who might otherwise have no real Christmas. Last year, through readers of this newspaper,

Fire in Edison Plant Injures Two Men

Two men were burned, a hermetically sealed battery room was attacked with hack saws and gas masks in the belief that others were trapped in it, and traffic was tied up for 40 minutes by a fire in the Edison Electric Illuminating Company's sub-station on Stuart st., today.

Nearby buildings were plunged into darkness, and Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, in charge of the headquarters next door, alarmed by fumes of burning wires, called ambulances and ordered an inspector to investigate.

Fumes and smoke filled the entire neighborhood and even penetrated to the jewelry store of Carl J. Skinner on Boylston st., who, fearing a conflagration, sealed his vaults and telephoned fire headquarters.

Henry Rotsch, 24, of Central st, Stoughton, and James Mills, 23, of Walnut st., Dedham, employed on the sixth floor where the fire occurred, were treated at City Hospital for burns of arms, hands and foreheads.

Members of the maintenance squad of the company, armed with hack saws and gas masks, were rushed to the building in taxicabs in the belief that Rotsch, Mills and another man were trapped in the battery room.

The fire was started when a bus bar or contact plate was dropped

Killed by Auto on His Honeymoon

New Bedford, Dec. 2—Fred J. Bentley, 62, real estate dealer, was killed on his honeymoon in North Carolina, according to word received by the police today.

Bentley was killed when his automobile went over an embankment, and his bride, formerly Miss Margaret Stewart MacIntosh, of Grafton, was seriously injured.

The couple were married in New Bedford a week ago, it being the second marriage for Bentley, who was a widower. Miss MacIntosh was a nurse.

ROB SAFE; PUT IT IN ICE BOX

Robbers who first opened a safe in the Fenmore Cafeteria, by means of the combination, extracted $1045, then ripped the top off and installed it in the big refrigerator in the basement, were sought by police today.

The safe was missing from the office when the lunch room was opened for business and a search revealed it in the refrigerator.

Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay station was notified and, with Inspector Warren Leish, finger print expert, visited the lunch room. An inspection of the safe revealed the top had been pinned off after the safe was opened, and a safe expert who was called in confirmed this decision.

GOT MURDER GUN FROM GUARD, IS CLAIM

Brother of the Doomed Slayer Says He Will Name Culprit Before Zero Hour Tonight

The gun with which Charles Trippi, jr., killed Fred Pfluger, state prison guard, he bought for $500 from another prison guard, it was charged late today at an 11th hour move to save Trippi from the electric chair tonight.

The charge was made by Frank Trippi, brother of the condemned slayer, at a conference between Warden Hegarty of State Prison, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle and Michael H. Shapley, Trippi's counsel. The conference was held in the district attorney's office.

TO NAME GUARD.

Frank Trippi said his information came from his brother. He was asked by Doyle to supply the name of the guard from whom Trippi obtained the weapon with which he attempted to shoot his way to freedom and replied he could not do so but thought he could get it.

The conference adjourned and Frank Trippi departed with a promise to return this evening.

Doyle said that without the name of the guard he would seek no respite for the slayer who is scheduled to go to the chair soon after midnight.

Considerable secrecy surrounded the 11th-hour move to postpone Trippi's execution. When it was learned the meeting was being held the intimation was out that Trippi's sanity was again being discussed.

Doyle made no statement of the conference after it had disbanded.

He was the prosecuting officer at Trippi's trial.

READY TO DIE

It was not known whether the condemned man was aware of the action being taken in his behalf. He appeared resigned to his fate and prison officials said he appeared anxious to have it over with.

He was given communion by the Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, and disposed of two good meals. He received his last visit from relatives late this afternoon.

It was believed that Frank Trippi, on the last visit to the prison, would attempt to obtain from his brother the name of the guard alleged to have sold the weapon.

Congressman Hurt in Fall on Ice

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Rep. Hill of Washington was taken to a hospital today after he had been injured by a fall on the icy pavement as he left his home to attend the initial session of Congress.

Several other members of Congress were bruised and shaken by falls on the slippery streets. Representative Hull of Illinois received treatment by the House physician after he had lost his footing on the way to the Capitol.

Passenger Arrivals Show Big Increase

An increase of passenger arrivals marked a report issued today on port statistics by the Maritime association, Chamber of Commerce.

During November 777 passengers arrived here from Europe, 1811 landed from Newfoundland and Canada and 10 from the West Indies. For the same month a year ago a total of 2550 arrived.

While the number of vessels arriving here was less than a year ago November, the report showed a large increase in total tonnage.

more than 1000 families were aided.

"I saved my money to buy some embroidery material in to make something nice for mama," explained Josephine, "but I thought that the money might help someone who has no mother."

Josephine learned about the Goodfellow Club from her mother, Mrs. Felix Preiss, a native of Hungary who has lived in Boston for seven years.

"I try to teach my girl to grow up good and not be jealous, stingy or selfish," she said, adding: "That was how I was brought up in the old country."

Josephine is the first member of the 1929 Goodfellow Club, but hundreds more will be added soon. Letters are beginning to come in from families which need help, and a list is being compiled.

Last year fully 5000 children and adults were provided with money, stockings, shoes, gloves, mittens and other useful articles. Many were given toys and other gifts which cheered up a Christmas that loomed up dismally.

The Goodfellow plan is very simple. If you want to be a "good fellow" for one of more families, write to the Goodfellow editor of this newspaper.

Preference may be expressed for some special district or section of Boston or other cities, where the Goodfellow wishes to serve.

As soon as the appeals are received from those particular sections, these will be sent to one of the Goodfellows from that district. He will then be able to help personally.

For those who want to help but haven't the time, the Boston Evening American will gladly see that the money sent in by Goodfellows in spots where it will make some one happy.

Some of the cases brought to the attention of the Boston Evening American last year included families whose fathers were ill and out of work, families in which had only one parent who had no Christmas funds.

A deserted wife with two babies wrote asking for nothing for herself, but a few toys for the children. She was made happy by some Goodfellow.

Will YOU be a Goodfellow this year to some unhappy parent or child?

$55,000,000 IN RIVER, HARBOR BUDGET

New England Is Given Only a Nominal Sum in Huge Waterway Estimate

Washington, Dec. 2—The first big budget of estimates for river and harbor development to be submitted to Congress under the Hoover administration calls for appropriations of $55,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000 over last year.

This sum is fixed by the chief of army engineers in a report today as the amount that can be profitably expended during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1930. Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the engineers' corps, estimated that $17,771,182 had been expended on the improvement and maintenance of projects during the year ended June 30, and that unexpended funds, including appropriations for the current year, were $76,899,037 on July 1 this year. The estimates do not include flood control work on the Mississippi river system.

In his recent speech in Louisville, Ky., outlining a program for waterways development, the President estimated the cost of carrying out his plans would result in increasing the appropriations for river and harbor work by $10,000,000 a year, with additional funds necessary when the St. Lawrence river project was undertaken.

Almost twice as much for intracoastal canals and other internal waterways is asked than was spent last year and increased amounts are estimated for the Mississippi river system and lake harbor and channels. Seacoast harbors and channels call for less loan expended last year.

Detailed estimates include the following for maintenance:

Portland Harbor, Maine, $15,000; Boston Harbor, $33,000; Cape Cod Canal, $185,000; Pollock Rip Shoal, Nantucket Sound, $15,000; Providence River and Harbor, $51,000 for improvement and maintenance, each; Thames River, Ct., $38,000; Connecticut River below Hartford, $20,000; Duck Island Harbor, Connecticut, $66,000; Housatonic River, Connecticut, $13,000; Norwalk Harbor, Connecticut, $16,000.

The First Goodfellow

Josephine Preiss, 9, of East Fifth st., is the first member of the 1929 Goodfellow Club. Josephine earned $5 during the year by running errands and was going to buy something for her mother. But she was deeply touched by the appeal for little boys and girls who have no mothers and whose daddies may not be able to play Santa Claus. So Josephine sent her $5 to the Boston Evening American for the Goodfellow Club fund.

WITNESS HEARD ROTHSTEIN CRY OUT 'I'M SHOT!'

Saw McManus Alleged Victim on First Floor of New York Hotel

New York, Dec. 2—A State witness in the trial of George A. McManus testified today that on the night of Nov. 4, 1928, he saw in the first floor hallway of the Park Central Hotel a man who said "I'm shot" and held his stomach as though in pain.

The man, the state contends, was Arnold Rothstein making his way from room 349, in the street, where he was found by police. He was taken to a hospital and died two days later.

The testimony was given by Vincent Kelly, a Park Central electrician who was running a service elevator in the hotel that night.

Kelly said that, although he didn't know it at the time, he later learned the wounded man was Rothstein.

WOMAN GRILLED

He had followed to the stand Mrs. Marian A. Putnam, a gray-haired but youthful appearing widow of Asheville, N. C., who had identified Friday she saw a man staggering down a third floor hallway, a "terrible look on his face and his hands clasped to his abdomen.

She, however, was unable to identify the man.

Mrs. Putnam was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination today by James D. C. Murray, defence counsel.

She lost her composure for a moment. Her voice quivered and tears came to her eyes as she turned to Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., and said:

"I have never been arrested in my life, never found guilty of innocent of any crime."

The judge then ruled that any [illegible] as to the witness' past life were out of order.

Murray's first question today was what color hat the man she saw staggering down the hall wore.

She answered she didn't recall and then gave the same answer to other questions regarding the man's clothes.

Q—Did it occur to you the man had been drinking? A—Yes.

Q—You did not think he had [illegible] too. He just wasn't acting normal. He [illegible] to have been angry, to have been injured.

Q—You thought he was injured, yet you did not summon help? A—No, I did not.

DIDN'T SEE CHAMBERMAID.

Q—You knew a chambermaid named D [illegible] Farry? A—Yes.

Q—Did you see her that night? A—No.

The state said in its opening that Rothstein sought [illegible] she was on the third floor of the Park Central that fateful night and that McManus in room 349 a few minutes before the state says Rothstein was shot there.

Murray tried to get Mrs. Putnam to identify the man with whom she was staying as one he met, but she refused and said he was not in the hotel the night of Nov. 4.

Murray then brought the [illegible] with that she had been [illegible] three times. She divorced [illegible] her husbands, she said, and Mr. Putnam died.

DENIES STORE THEFT

Q.—Is it not true that in June, 1929, you entered the Nathan Goldman store in Hendersonville, N. C., with another woman and stole two [illegible]? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you [illegible] in Asheville and then found two dresses in a Goldman saleswoman said had been stolen.

Q.—Didn't you admit you had stolen them? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't the dresses had been stolen by a friend of hers and that she settled the matter with the police to protect the girl, named "Dorothy," from arrest.

Answering questions by Asst. Dist. Atty. George N. Brothers, Miss Putnam said she had told different stories about the happenings of the night of November 4, 1928, because she "didn't want to get mixed up in it." She identified a Park Central registration card bearing the names "Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Putnam, Asheville, N. C."

Q.—That is your true name and your correct address? A.—Yes.

Q.—No attempt at concealment? A.—No.

Murray then asked:

Q.—Did you talk with Bridget Ferry about this case at the district attorney's office? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you tell her? A.—That she knew McManus and had seen him in the hotel.

Q.—Why? A.—I knew that Bridget had that information.

the ways and means committee Wednesday. Undersecretary Mills of the treasury will appear and explain its provisions.

HOUSE TO ACT THURSDAY

Special permission was obtained by Hawley to report the resolution for action by the House Thursday. Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, said it would have legislative right of way.

The resolution would change the rates for one year only. Should the measure not be re-enacted by the next Congress, the present rates will again be effective.

The new session began at noon, facing the task of passing on President Hoover's first full legislative program which will be placed before it tomorrow in a 12,000-word message dealing with almost every national and international activity of the federal government.

Although it was a new session, it was not a new Congress for its members had been engaged in work of the special session through the hot months of a Washington summer.

TARIFF BILL ON TAP

The tariff is already before the new session, a legacy from the special session which argued over it for months.

Both houses convened at noon, Vice-President Curtis pounding for order in the Senate and Speaker Longworth wielding the gavel in the House. Despite the weather the usual opening day crowd was in the galleries of both chambers.

The Senate session lasted only nine minutes.

Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, returned to the chamber after an absence of three weeks in quest of rest. He was the center of a circle of well wishers.

The Senate roll call showed 64 members present.

Senator-elect Vare, who has been ill for more than a year, reached the city prepared to go before the Senate this afternoon. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania planned a conference with Vare later today.

Vare has requested a recount of ballots in 31 additional counties in the contest brought by William B. Wilson, his Democrate opponent.

NAB EX-CONVICT IN AUTO THEFT

Pawtucket, R. I., Dec. 2—Theft of a city official's auto led to the recapture today of Willard H. Anderson, alias William Middleton, 22, who escaped last June from New Hampshire state prison at Concord.

Mechanical Eye Tells of Poison in Tunnel

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—A new mechanical eye that can see dangerous gases before they are visible to the human eye is under test today in the great Holland tunnel under the Hudson river. The device detects haze rising from automobile exhausts. It is set deep within the traffic lanes where the motors labor hardest. Through an electric wire it moves a pencil in an office half a mile away, tracing on a scale sheet of paper a record showing when the air in the tube is beginning to store up poison pockets.

This record lies before a supervisor, who is within reach of exhaust fan switches and ready to speed their suction when the pencil gives warning.

The detector is made of a long beam of light and a photo-electric tube, round as a baseball, but smaller. Alongside this electric eye is a lens projecting the beam above traffic and parallel to it up near to tunnel roof. One hundred and fifty feet away a prism catches this beam and reflects it back not to the lens, but directly into the round eye. Haze or other impurities, and particularly warm exhaust gases that rise to the roof pass through the beam in passing. They shade the volume of light and, although the shadow may be virtually infinitesimal, the sensitive mechanical eye detects it and transforms it into electrical energy.

Just Proving Winter Has Arrived

Officer Leon DeRoehn, Station 15, Charlestown, was glad Supt. Crowley had ordered the police to don their winter overcoats. They usually put them on on December 15.

wife and children on two occasions.

Mrs. Cabrunso testified that she visited him because she was ill and took her little girl along. Griswold told her, she said, that there was nothing the matter with her, but that the child would die before Christmas unless it received treatment.

He gave her a book, she said, and told her to bring him some baby shoes and stockings and a key to a china closet to be placed in a box with a lamb's heart and buried in a cemetery at night.

He gave her powders and a rubbing treatment, sprinkled water on her body and rubbed red paint on her, she testified. Her husband corroborated.

Griswold admitted accepting the dollars named, but not the cents. He denied the red paint incident.

Sergt. William J. Curtin arrested him and at the station Capt. Canney inquired what manner of treatment he gave. Griswold replied: "I'll show you," and began rubbing the policeman's face, body and limbs.

"Do you feel my power?" he then asked. "No," said Capt. Canney. "I do not feel your power," and booked him on larceny charges.

TWO BURNED IN EDISON FIRE

on a terminal in the battery room, short circuiting it and the entire plant.

The wires began to burn, and clouds of smoke and fumes filled the entire building, and seeped into the cold air outside.

Two women among the 50 employes, Misses Eleanor Maddeka and Bertha Marvin, were ordered out of the building, and the men began an attack on the fire.

The battery room became sealed in some fashion, and word went around that three men were trapped inside. The downtown headquarters of the company was notified and the maintenance squad, carrying a chemical preparation along with their gas masks and saws, hurried to the building.

They began an attack on the door of the battery room and in the meantime all the nearby structures were thrown into darkness and elevators went out of operation.

In the Park Square building and others thousands of girl employes were forced to walk upstairs, some of them as many as 11 flights, at lunch time.

While the fire was being fought it was discovered that the missing men had been found, and the fire extinguished, sent in a still alarm and ordered Inspector James Egan to the building to investigate.

Traffic was tied up on Stuart, Berkeley and Stanhope sts. for 45 minutes.

Among the buildings affected by the loss of power were Headquarters, Park Square, John Hancock, American Mutual, Pettingill-Andrews, Y. W. C. A. and Saluda Tea.

An official of the Edison stated that the trouble was caused by a workman dropping a piece of metal on live contact leads of a storage battery. This, he said, short-circuited the entire building, cutting the station off temporarily.

The company threw on three other stations and took care of the trouble in a short time. He said voltage in lamps and elevators dropped a little, and two young men were singed around the hands and arms.

Phillips was uninjured but a bit disconcerted.

EXPOSURE OF 1360 FATAL SHOOTINGS BY RUM SLEUTHS STIRS SENATE

ACTION TO BE URGED UPON CONGRESS

Prohibition Advocates Readily Admit Volstead Law Is Unenforcible

Washington, Dec. 2—Revelations by the Washington Herald that 1360 persons have been killed in 10 years' effort to enforce Volstead ism a total compiled from official records has astounded members of Congress.

"Shotgun enforcement" was scored by senators and representatives. Surprise was expressed at the huge toll of life shown by the survey. Advocates of true temperance flayed the killings as a "reign of terror" in an attempt to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment by the present Volstead act.

Staunch supporters of Volstadism, while deploring the loss of life, defended gun-play only as an act of self-defense.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat of Texas, known as the father of the Eighteenth Amendment, was among the dry leaders who insisted that enforcement officers should shoot only in self-defense.

He declared, however, that an analysis he had made of killings by Federal agents showed less than 1 per cent of cases in which Federal officers had fired other than in self-defense.

"I have not the figures before me, but I believe y . will find that the 1360 lives lost is small compared to the number of persons arrested for violation of the prohibition law," said Sheppard.

Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, of Kansas, regretted that lives had been lost in the enforcement of prohibition.

ENFORCEMENT FAILS

"But the number of lives lost is small compared with the number who lose their lives in automobile accidents," Capper said. "The only true prohibition officers should be allowed to shoot is in self-defense."

Senator Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, who holds that present enforcement methods have failed to produce results, declared:

"Just as we today look back with horror upon the part of our country's history which records burning of people in New England for witchcraft, so will a future generation look back upon the taking of human life on this great scale in our day.

"A great many of the offences for which persons have been killed have been for disdemeanors. Therefore, the condoning of these killings in the name of law and order is to say in effect that we favor death as punishment for misdemeanors.

"If an officer would shoot a citizen for exceeding the speed limit or for expectorating on the sidewalk, the whole country would rise in arms. Yet we are permitting by analogy the killing of hundreds of citizens for offenses like these without protest, except from a few individuals.

ELEVENTH COMMANDMENT

"The 10 commandments say thou shalt not kill and so does the law out due to the zeal of some persons the 11th commandment, thou shalt not drink, makes violation of one of the 10 commandments of no consequence.

"The Washington Herald is to be congratulated on presenting the facts and figures to the public."

Senator Hawes, Democrat, of Missouri, said:

"I am astounded by the great number of persons killed in the attempt to enforce the prohibition laws. We who have been watching the efforts to enforce the Volstead act knew there are many killings, but the records revealed by the Herald indicate the situation is much worse than we had expected."

Senator Blaine, Republican, of Wisconsin, said:

"Prohibition is a scourge. In its wake has come crime of all sorts, corruption, graft, murder and a whole train of evils. I am not greatly surprised by the revelations in the Washington Herald. America will come to her senses some day and modify prohibition in the interest of true temperance, but I see no hope as long as drys condone these killings."

Rep. Sol Bloom, Democrat, of New York, said:

"These revelations will stir the country. They reveal a condition which can be corrected only by modification of the law. We can look forward to many more deaths in prohibition enforcement, unless it is modified in the interest of true temperance."

His Old Company Says Last Farewell to Capt. Sullivan, Whose Heroism Caused His Death

They had been cut off by the smoke and flames and the captain went into the building to save them. His body and that of the mother and child were found by firemen of his company. The coffin is seen being taken into the church followed by mourners as the members of the company stand at silent salute. (Staff photo.)

GANG KILLERS' SHOTS HEARD IN WESTFIELD

Westfield, Dec. 2—A possible clue in the mysterious murder of an unidentified man, whose body was found off City View rd., was found by the police today.

Ralph Johnson, 18, a resident of the neighborhood, said that at 9:30 Saturday night he heard three shots, and on looking from the window saw a sedan race by.

The car went so fast, Johnson told police, he could not get the registration number, but he said the tail light was not red and he believed the body was yellow.

After telling his story to State Detective David Manning and Inspector William A. O'Brien of the Westfield police, Johnson accompanied them to the spot where the body was found and picked up part of a watch fob.

BROOK WAS FROZEN

It was found on the road, apparently torn off when the victim's body was hurled over the rail fence with the expectation, probably, that it would roll into a nearby brook at the foot of a slight drop.

The brook was frozen, however, and the body never reached it, being caught by two saplings, where it was discovered by Lawrence J. Bineau and his four-year-old daughter, Mary.

The murdered man's identity is still unrevealed, all identifying marks and valuables having been removed from his clothing. From the material and cut of his suit and overcoat the authorities deduced that the victim was in affluent circumstances. His hands, according to Medical Examiner Smith, showed no evidence of hard labor, but were white, soft and well manicured.

"TAKEN FOR A RIDE"

The authorities leaned to the theory that the man was "taken for a ride" in a bootleg foul, as Westfield is on the rum-running road between Canada and New York State.

The body was found off a country road, some distance from the main highway, and in a sparsely settled neighborhood.

Several percussion caps were picked up in the road, but police believe they have no connection with the case.

The victim was apparently first shot in the head, from behind, and another bullet fired into his heart as he lay on the ground. Two other shots grazed the man's head.

NEW FIGHT IN DOCK WORKERS' PARLEY

A scheduled "peace parley" between longshoremen and steamship agents turned into another wrangle today, when no agreement was reached up to an afternoon recess on the working agreement for men at this port.

The longshoremen, at a Faneuil Hall mass meeting yesterday, voted to accept a proposition of transatlantic agents, allowing them 21 men to a gang, with an unlimited weight on the troublesome sling load.

The agents, according to reports at that meeting, were ready to sign the agreement to that effect. The question of intercoastal lines, however, was expected to be decided later.

Agents for the latter refused to enter into the proposition advanced by the transatlantic agents, holding out for 19 men to the gang, with the unlimited sling load. This conceded the men two workers over the agreement that expired Sept. 30 in consideration of the lifting of the sling load from an 1120-lb. maximum to an unlimited status.

Overseas agents freely said they were ready to sign today just before the meeting started at 177 Milk st. Some of them stated the intercoastal proposition could be handled after the oversea lines had signed.

While the meeting was closed, it was learned that both sides were centering their efforts toward an amicable agreement between the committee of union leaders and the intercoastal lines before any of them signed.

After a strenuous morning, the delegates agreed to meet again late today.

Theatre Owner Shot by Waiting Gunman

St. Louis, Dec. 2 (AP)—State Senator Joseph Mogler, 33, owner of three motion picture theaters here, was shot through the head and killed today by one of two men who waited for him in the Mogler theater at Ninth st. and Bremen ave.

Circumstances surrounding the murder caused the police to dismiss a theory of robbery, believing that Mogler was killed by men involved in his relations with gangsters. Mogler frequently signed bail bonds for gangsters and for others charged with major crimes.

Nurses Save Children in Hospital Fire

Newark, N. J., Dec. 2 (INS)—Sixty-nine children, many of them cripples, were carried to safety by nurses early today when the hospital for crippled children here was damaged by fire.

The blaze resembled in many ways the disaster that claimed 125 lives at the Cleveland Clinic last May.

The fire originated in the X-ray room and firemen were forced to wear gas masks to protect them from fumes given off by blazing films.

As soon as an alarm had been sounded, nurses and other members of the hospital staff went through the wards, gathering up the patients and carrying them to a new wing of the institution, where there was no danger of the fumes penetrating.

Firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the X-ray room, where films accumulated in the last five years were stored in steel filing cabinets.

Warns Moses Tonight

Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa promises plenty of verbal ammunition in his City Club address tonight. One of his chief reasons in coming to Boston at this time, he said, is to warn Senator Moses and others who called him a wild jackass. He's the guest of his brother-in-law, W. W. Hearne, in Melrose. KING AND QUEEN TO VISIT POPE THURSDAY

Rome, Dec. 2 (AP)—An official communication today announced that the King and Queen of Italy will visit Pope Pius at 11 a. m. Thursday. They will go to the Vatican with a numerous suite, including the foreign minister, prefect of the palace, court chaplain and others.

The visit will be of intense significance, the first time a King and Queen of United Italy have visited a Pope.

For days hundreds and thousands of persons have been pouring into Rome to witness the great spectacle. Availing themselves of the 50 per cent reduction on railroad fares, pilgrims have come from as far north as the Alps and from as far south as Sicily. The gathering for the spectacle will aggregate at least 500,000 persons.

The King and Queen will ride from the Quirinal palace to the Vatican in a carriage of state, drawn by four horses. Other carriages will precede and follow them. Dino Grandi, minister of foreign affairs, will be in one. Leading the procession will be the royal bodyguard of mounted Cuirassiers.

The route will be about two miles across the Tiber over the Victor Emmanuel Bridge and under the shadow of the Castle San Angelo, once a papal fortress. The route will be lined with thousands of troops.

At the boundary line of Vatican City the royal pair will be met by Prince Massimo, postmaster-general, and Commendatore Serafini, governor of the city. The papal gendarmes will give military honors and their band will play the Royal March, for the first time in their history.

The meeting between the Pope and the royal visitors will take place in the papal throne room and will be private. Only the King and Queen and the Pontiff will be there. The doors will be closed.

HUBBY TO O. K. WIFE'S CREDIT

Washington, Dec. 2 (INS)—Merchants who extend credit accounts to married women must first ascertain whether their patrons have the authority to pledge their husbands' money, according to an opinion handed down by the Court of Appeals today in exonerating Representative George Huddleston (D.) of Alabama of liability for a debt contracted by his wife.

The Alabama congressman was sued by a fur company for $243, representing the balance of a fur coat and fox scarf purchased by Mrs. Huddleston. Defending the suit, Huddleston declared that he made his wife an allowance of $75 a month and admonished her not to make purchases in excess of her allowance.

The appelate court opinion lays down the rule that when a husband has once performed his duty to provide for his wife he cannot be compelled to do so a second time.

Snowslide Is Forecast by "Bossy"

Newburyport, Dec. 2—Two to one if the day is fair. Three to one if it snows.

That's the Victory lineup for Mayor Andrew J. Gillis of Newburyport at the polls, where he seeks reelection, the red-headed chief executive declared loudly today.

"I'll bury this guy, Mike Cashman," Mayor Gillis asserted. Cashman was Gillis' predecessor in the mayor's office.

"I'll win by two to one—easy. Wow, look at that snow. I hope it snows eight feet. Then I'll beat this guy, Cashman, by three to one.

"I'm having a rally tonight at City Hall. I'll tip him apart. I'm not going to get personal, mind you, but I'm going to talk to the point.

He inferred in the local papers that I knocked off $200 graft. I'll show the voters how wrong he is.

Some of those babies who started me over the road to jail will find themselves facing a grand jury within the next two years.

Cashman goes down among the French voters and gives them ice cream and cake and all he had to say against me was that I called them frogs. I call a Frenchman a 'frog' just as I call an Irishman a 'mick' and an Italian a 'wop.'

"I meant no offense by that, but Mike didn't tell them the breaks I gave the French voters. I went through like a man-o'-war for a lot of them, and they know it. They'll eat Cashman's ice cream and cake but they'll vote for Bossy.

My opponent said prices for improvements during my administration have been exorbitant. I made improvements but there has been no takeoff of any kind.

Gillis declared he has only one big thing in his vitamin he will introduce a plan under which fire insurance rates would be reduced. This will include centralization of fire apparatus and appointment of more firemen.

Woman, 'Learning' in Crash'; 2 Are Hurt

Two women were injured, one severely, when an auto crashed into a tree in Malden today while one of the occupants was learning to drive. The injured are: Mrs. Marion Vincent, 19, Webber st., fractured left leg and shattered left knee cap; Mrs. Anna F. Hambridge, 21 Tufts st., cuts over left eye.

Mrs. Hambridge was learning to drive her new car. At Bellrock and Wyllis sts., Malden, her view was cut off by another machine, causing her to crash into the tree. The machine was badly wrecked.

Mrs. Hambridge was discharged from the Malden hospital, where both were taken, but the other woman is still under treatment.

The license number of the other machine was not taken by the women.

BROOKHART IN RARE FORM AT STATE HOUSE

Two Republicans—United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, Liberal, and Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, Conservative—discussed politics, banking, farming and tariff at the State House this afternoon.

Brookhart maintained in possibly his most striking statement that the Massachusetts system of taxation was all wrong and that income alone should be the true basis of taxation. He believed personal property should be completely relieved of taxation burdens and said the next Governor of Iowa would be elected on an income taxation platform.

Discussing another phase of the taxation problem, Senator Brookhart, rather heatedly stated that the federal government was not paying its fair share for road work or anything like it.

Governor Allen intimated that Massachusetts was picking no quarrel with the federal contributions, but said if more was paid it would not be refused.

"Agricultural prices are too low to meet the cost of production, the Senator said. "Now you see why we are radical. As radical as the Boston tea party. As radical as John Hancock. We think that the Bolsheviki farmers of Lexington and Concord were good Americans. We want a declaration of independence."

Governor Allen replied: "I can't believe that the people of the West are in any more radical mood than they are in the East."

Senator Brookhart then turned his guns on the "gambling policy set up in New York," saying: "We should see to it that we have a banking system to furnish credit to a bunch of gamblers?"

GREAT SHOW AT DEDICATION OF AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

New Bedford, Dec 2—"This, in my opinion, is one of the finest airports that we have in New England," stated State Supervisor of Aviation, Robert Lincoln O'Brien during his dedicatory address at the New Bedford-Fairhaven airport.

"We have had several airports built in this State, Supervisor O'Brien continued, but we have never found a natural field on which to build an airport that didn't have to be built. And by that I mean this field you have right down here."

The chap O'Brien was the speaker of the day, but closely following him was Albert Lees, the State inspector of the Southern New England.

Lees came in but with various remarks, but the things he said made Dave Sher, manager of the airport, blush, and if Isaac Dorson had been present, instead of being in New York, having been called away on business, he would have blushed too, but as Edward Moore said, "it was just too bad."

PUT ON GREAT SHOW

Finally, to wind up the dedicatory speeches, Austin S. Maxim, attorney for the corporation, and one of the directors of the same came to bat with a few words about the airport, and how he hoped the ground would be graced with the show that was to follow.

And what a show. The whole works started off with Dave Sher dedicatory remarks, and then followed the greatest show that the people of New Bedford have seen in a long time.

There was Dave Sher, the general manager of the Sound Airways, Inc., operators of the airport, who won the speed race, flying over the 25-mile course in 18 minutes, or at a speed of about 110 miles an hour. Second place in this event went to Danny Diggs of Boston, who flashed across the finish line at 112 miles an hour. Last, but not least, came Hank Olden, whose real name is Henry, although one would never know it who wound up his Travel Air to dive across the line to find third prize waiting for him.

JUDGES DECISION

The judges, headed by Al Lees, and including J. E. Moore, and the writer, decided that instead of Sher picked up 20 seconds from the time he took off and lead the field by 15 seconds at the finish, that Sher must have won that event.

Immediately following the speed race Hank Olden, who in any other times, is chief pilot for the Sound Airways, Inc., put on the finest exhibition of stunt flying with a stock commercial airplane that we have ever seen.

Olden, flying his ONX-six-motored Travel Air, turned out some of the most dangerous stunts ever known to this game. Hank flew on his back, until the announcer was almost speechless, and by that we mean, Olden came right down from 1500 feet to 600 feet upside down, and the crowd almost went haywire. But this was not enough for this chap Hank, who, after flying the Travel Air cabin monoplane felt like cutting up. He did.

Danny Duggan, after finishing second in the speed race, took a look around and saw Olden up above him, turning his ship inside-out, so he decided that he, too, had something coming to them, so he stayed up in the air for 20 minutes and what he didn't do with his airplane, is nobody's business.

PARACHUTE JUMP

Winding up the air meet or rather, the dedication of this airport, was a parachute jump by Forest Rye of Boston, who stepped off a Travel Air biplane piloted by Hank Olden and fell 500 feet before he pulled the rip cord and opened his chute. He landed right on the airport, parking on the softest part of the airport. Slipping his chute until he had the hem of said chute in his chin, and finally found his landing place. And what a landing.

The Sound Airways is composed of Isaac "Ike" Dorson, president and treasurer, and Dave Sher, general manager. The latter has complete charge of the airport, and all operations of the company, and the former is one of the finest boosters of commercial aviation this game ever had.

Gale Whips England; Ships Seek Shelter

London, Dec. 2 (AP)—A heavy gale was raging over southern England today, forcing Channel ships to take shelter in Dover and causing flood conditions on many rivers, including the Thames.

Service to the Orkney Islands was interrupted, while Plymouth had a deluge of rain, making the fall there for this period of the year the heaviest in 60 years. Weather conditions at Howden, Yorkshire, were unfavorable for the launching of the giant dirigible R-100.

CHINA-SOVIET PEACE MOVE ADVANCES

Shanghai, Dec 2 (AP)—From the maze of reports, denials and counter-denials of the past week at least one fact appeared certain today—that negotiations looking to peaceful settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy in Manchuria have reached a fairly advanced stage and will be continued.

The negotiations are between the Manchurian provincial government and Soviet Russia rather than between the central government at Nanking and Moscow, although Foreign Minister C. T. Wang, arriving here from Nanking, said the central government approved them.

U. S. OFFICIALS SEEK TO CANCEL DOHENY LEASES

Los Angeles, Dec. 2 (AP)—Cancellation of oil leases in Kern County, Cal. said to be valued at $15,000,000, is sought in the suit of the United States against the Pan-American Petroleum Company which begins today before Judge Frank H. Norcross in Federal Court. The suit involves three oil leases totalling 660 acres.

The government charges the leases were made through fraud between Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, and Edward L. Doheny, head of the Pan-American Company.

In addition to an injunction forbidding further use of the lands and to cancellation of leases, the Government seeks an accounting for profits already derived.

"Good Gracious!—I Rolling Pin!

"What is she doing with it, Priscilla? Why, she's rolling the wrinkles away!" Aunt Alice, to whom rolling pins mean one thing and wrinkles another, was so fascinated by the Contouring Treatment Miss Dorothy, Guest Beautician at Filene's was giving that I just could not extract her from the throng of onlookers in Filene's Beauty Balcony. Miss Dorothy represents Contoure, and her treatments are the most unusual I have seen. There is one treatment to build up the tissues of thin faces, and banish wrinkles; and one to firm fat, fleshy faces into clean youthful lines. Each treatment is given with an individual sealed vial of emulsion, which is worked into the skin through a heated roller. This rolling process prevents the possibility of muscles being loosened and wrinkles forming through too vigorous massaging. The price for one facial treatment is $2.75 each, or 6 for $15. For face and neck the price is $3.50 each, or 6 for $18. Contoure also put out the most delightful Cleansing Cream and Skin Food at $1.25 each, which would make a most thoughtful Christmas Gift, for they come in attractive jars, with gold metal caps. But Anne—I'm saving the surprise for the last. Contoure has a Reducing Cream! You can pat on your twin chins, and other fleshy portions, without harm. And it costs but $2. Miss Dorothy will be in Filene's Beauty Balcony all this week. Don't miss her for the world!

Colors Must Match—Colors Must Blend

We're getting color-conscious, Anne. You can't wear a long dress under a shorter coat if the colors clash. So what is everyone doing with unmatched costumes? They are having them dyed! It's the simplest and best way of keeping your complete wardrobe in working condition. Faded dresses, and sun-streaked coats grow brighter, smarter and give twice as much wear, when dyed by the Pyramid Co., who are now making a specialty of dyeing. Their process produces clear, rich colors; perfect blacks and navies, and their prices are the most reasonable I have found anywhere. Of course, I don't need to remind you of their wonderful $1 cleansing service, where fur-trimmed coats and dresses of all kinds are cleansed and pressed for only $1. Whether your dress is a swirling chiffon affair, of pleats and flares, or a smart three-piece trotter suit, it will receive the best attention which Pyramid can give, and that means satisfaction. You may take your things, or mail them, and they will receive prompt attention. The Pyramid Co., 26 West St., Fabyan Bldg., Rm. 602.

"Our Family Failing

is superfluous hair," whispered a lovely lady in Elizabeth Sparkes' office, "and when I discovered my Betty's schoolgirl complexion becoming clouded with this distressing growth I consulted our family physician. He suggested that I take her to Miss Elizabeth Sparkes, an electric needle specialist, whose work has been found so satisfactory by many of his other patients. So here I am, and I'm delighted with the improvement in Betty's appearance. Every undesirable hair is gone, and not a mark has been left upon her tender young skin, for Miss Sparkes work is painless and permanent." She is at 120 Tremont St., Rm. 334. Tel. Han. 7592.

MANY SHIPS IN PERIL; STORM RAGES AT SEA

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 2 (AP)—The steamer Franiadoc, Canadian registry, was aground today on Main Duck Island, 28 miles from here in Lake Ontario, with heavy seas sweeping her. The freighter, loaded with 2100 tons of grain and carrying a crew of about 18 men, went ashore in a northwest gale yesterday. A ship is standing by.

St. John's, N. F., Dec. 2 (AP)—[illegible] fishing schooners was shrouded in a snowstorm that blanketed the Newfoundland coast today.

A pilot boat which put out to search the 700-ton Norwegian freighter Hertha, drifting with her fuel exhausted off Cape Spear, failed to return. Two tugs which went out to search returned without finding any trace of the Hertha. It was feared the pilot boat had foundered.

A tug left Sydney Friday night to take in tow the Norwegian freighter Grey County, disabled 160 miles east of Cape Race with a broken rudder. The Norwegian freighter Isabelle County was in trouble 400 miles southeast of St. John's with her smokestack and bridge deck carried away.

The crews of the schooners George Kay and Catherine B. were landed here by the steamer Joflein, which took them off the foundering vessel 45 miles from port.

Capt. Green of the Kay did not believe any of the dozen or more schooners which the wrecked craft sailed from St. John's could make port in the gale.

18 Rescued as Ship Is Lost on Great Lakes

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Dec. 2 (AP)—A gamble by the freighter Kiowa with the treacherous seas of Lake Superior has ended on an isolated shore of the lake with five of her crew missing, one dead and 18 rescued after severe exposure.

Radio messages received by coast guards headquarters here revealed how the Kiowa's sturdiness had been staked against the first storm of what mariners call the "gambling season" for lake navigation and how her skipper twice plowed a game course with winter, only to lose both times.

Groping through the storm and trying to hug the south shore line, the Kiowa went aground Saturday night on a reef 10 miles west of the village of Grand Marais, Mich.

Through the night she listed and Sunday morning, while the storm continued, Capt. Alex Young of Duluth, decided to go ashore. Rowed by the craft engineer, Fleming, the steward, wheelsman [illegible] man and porter into the [illegible]

Steamship in Danger Off Coast of England

Plymouth, Eng., Dec. 2 (AP)—A radio message from Falmouth stated that a steamer believed to be the British freighter Canadian Signet was drifting [illegible] miles south of St. Alban's Head.

Tugs and tugs were sent to her assistance. Heavy seas were running in the channel and visibility was bad.

SAYS SHE DIDN'T DRINK GIN

Brockton, Dec. 2—Reference to bridge parties and gin was made by Mrs. Gertrude E. McKey of Hull, daughter of Chief of Police Reynolds of that town, in the hearing in Probate court today of her divorce suit against George E. McKey, Hull and Hingham garage proprietor.

Mrs. McKey, who charged cruel and abusive treatment, denied she ever partook of gin at bridge parties in her home.

She recited acts of alleged cruelty on the part of her husband from 1913 to 1928, when she left him, and told of profanity which her five-year-old daughter overheard. Her husband also stayed out late, she said.

The bridge and gin parties reference was brought out by counsel for McKey, who cross-examined the witness. He asked if she had drank gin at these parties, in which she was present with her husband, his brother and the latter's girl friend.

In 1915 according to Mrs. McKey, her husband threw her out of his automobile, and on another occasion hit her with a holster roll and knocked her on to a bed.

In April of 1928, she testified, McKey struck her, knocking her against a window, cutting her head. She said she had left him and obtained a position as a manicurist beauty parlor, but [illegible] him along in her support and that of the child.

She admitted riding in the automobile of a man who passed at her home.

Boy, "Blown Up" Like Balloon, Dying in Hospital

Brussels, Dec. 2—Metal workers at the Gembloux foundry today played a gruesome practical joke to celebrate St. Eloi's Day. St. Eloi is the patron of their guild.

They blew up a 17-year-old boy with compressed air until he resembled a balloon. His shrieks brought a foreman, who hurried him to a hospital. The boy is expected to die.

MORE DEMAND TAX RELIEF

An increasing public opinion that the proposed Christmas income tax reductions by Congress are in reality representing financial relief for the big property owners rather than for the small tax payer, is being revealed in letters received by the Boston Evening American.

In today's mail, several communications were received from people living in Boston and vicinity who feel that the schedule announced by Secretary Mellon is by from adequate.

Among those who signed the letters received in this newspaper were:

Aaron Burr, 865 Main st., Brockton, private secretary; Delos M. Buck, West Newton, salesman; Calvin M. Rosenbloom, 461 Walnut ave., Jamaica Plain, accountant; William Good, 261 Rice ave., Revere, paint superintendent; William Elson, 17 Hallam st., Dorchester, laborer; Edward E. Case, 142 Poplar st., Chelsea.

Essex Institute Fund

A total of $110,836 has been received in the campaign of the Essex Institute of Salem for a $400,000 preservation and expansion fund, it was announced by the executive committee. These donations average $853.43 and include several memorial gifts as well as many individual subscriptions.

MAIL CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECKS

Were YOU one of the thousands of Boston people who opened their mail this morning and found a generous Christmas club check?

This was a red letter day to the extent of $8,000,000 for Bostonians and $32,000,000 for Massachusetts as a whole. The national total of condensed Christmas cheer checks is estimated at more than $160,000,000.

One of the busiest banks was the National Shawmut Bank, where an added crew of girls was installed to take care of the increased mail. Several desks were piled high. The bank reported a large business, although the Christmas club idea is relatively new for the institution, known for its "courtesy first" rule.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a Wednesday apartment and the best are advertised daily in the "For Rent" columns.

SIGN AND SAVE TAXES

Income Tax Editor, Boston Evening American:

You may list my name on a petition to the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, and Congress, to secure adequate reduction in taxes on earned incomes. I believe that the proposed cuts as announced by Secretary Mellon do not represent a sufficiently large proportion of relief to the salaried class. Incomes from labor and creative faculties are subject to limitations and fluctuations, while income from property is a permanent and stable income.

FLYING SQUAD PROVES BIG AID TO DRY FORCES

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—A flying squadron of prohibition prosecutors, speeding here and there over the country to lend aid to local officials, has impressed Atty.-Gen. Mitchell so much that he recommended today to Congress that its creation marked a highly important step in the progress of dry law enforcement.

Using funds transferred from the prohibition bureau and other sums granted by Congress last March, 50 experienced criminal lawyers have been made special assistants to the Attorney-General, to act in the capacity of assistant United States attorneys in places where their services were needed.

The flying squadron, which, however, does not generally travel by airplane, already has rendered assistance in trial work in New York, Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It stands ready to aid district attorneys in any place in the country.

The report of the attorney-general said that huge smuggling from the high seas and across the Canadian border continued during the past year and that the ocean smugglers had discarded the use of large boats for speedier motor boats.

It asserted that St. Pierre-Miquelon, French possession, in the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, had been the chief base for the illegal liquor supply of those engaged in smuggling into the United States.

Almost every phase of the prohibition enforcement work increased during 1929. Criminal prohibition prosecutions instituted during the year totaled 56,786, the number of cases terminated was 56,455, while 18,890 were pending at the close of June 30. Of the cases terminated there were 47,100 convictions.

PRISON SLAYER SAVED BY CODE OF GANGDOM

Oswitzing, N. Y., Dec. 2 (INS)—The unwritten law of the underworld, which allows for no mercy to a "squealer," today stood as the biggest barrier to Sing Sing Prison officials in their investigation into the mysterious fatal stabbing of Reubin Kaminetsky, 17-year-old prisoner.

Of the 1730 convicts lined up for the match to the cell-house after supper yesterday, a hundred must have worn the youth's five deep wounds in his face and body, stumble from his place in the somber file, and crumple to the ground. But today when questioned concerning the slayer, his weapon or his motive, all maintained a stolid silence.

Immediately after questioning the men, Warden Lewis E. Lawes ordered Jacob Burakoff and three other convicts into solitary confinement pending the outcome of further inquiry.

Burakoff, who is also 17, was the slain youth's companion in a Brooklyn, N. Y., holdup, for which they were both serving from seven to 15 years. According to Warden Lawes, Burakoff was arrested on information supplied by the Kaminetsky boy after his arrest.

Prison officials have declared that vengeance was the motive of the crime.

R. O. T. C. BODY ELECTS FRIES

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Organization of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Association of the United States to promote and foster the R. O. T. C. was perfected here with selection of Maj.-Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, as president.

Gen. Fries said reserve officers of the future must come almost entirely from the R. O. T. C. units in colleges and high schools and, as there are many organizations having for their purpose the elimination of military training in our schools, it has become necessary that the outside citizens of the land organize to assist in the encouragement and defense, if need be, of the R. O. T. C. in our high schools and colleges."

Body of Indian, Worth $2,000,000, Vanishes

Chicago, Dec. 2 (AP)—Universal Contes Hospital, where no bad Hawk, a Sioux chieftain with holdings of nearly $2,000,000 in Oklahoma oil lands, is dead at the age of 72, and today there was confusion as to what had happened to his body.

The aged Indian, a ward of the Government, died at the Cook County Hospital, where he had been since October. His daughter, Inez, 18, named in his will as heiress to half his fortune, is an inmate of the Industrial School for Girls at Geneva, a delinquent. His white wife, known as Ethel Gumbo, is said to be living in Chicago. She is bequeathed half the estate, although she has been estranged from Charging Hawk for many years.

The oil lands of the Indian have been held in trust. The property of Charging Hawk's parents to whom it was allotted by the government.

The Indian's body was claimed by a man known as Silver Bear, who represented himself as next of kin. Friends of Charging Hawk notified his attorneys, saying Silver Bear was no blood relative.

Charging Hawk served with the United States Army and also as a police officer at the Rosebud, S. D., reservation. His white wife lived with him there, but was ostracized by the Indians and finally returned to Chicago.

Sheehan was sentenced by Judge Fosdick of Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, on motion of District Atty. Bushnell.

The district attorney said alienists agreed as to the man's insanity.

Royal Chef Friday

ROYAL CHEF WILL TEACH FRIDAY

THERE are still a few tickets available for the special culinary demonstration to be given in the Martha Lee Kitchen, Friday, December 6, at 2 p. m., by K. Camille Den Dooven.

Mr. Den Dooven needs no introduction to a Martha Lee audience, nor indeed to New England, where he is recognized as an outstanding culinary authority.

At the recent Hotel Men's Show held at the Grand Central Palace in New York, Mr. Den Dooven won two first prizes and a silver cup with special mention for the most complete table display. He was also selected by the Epicurean Club of Boston to represent New England in the New York show the first time that a club of chefs from outside of New York city has sent a member to represent an outside state in a culinary exposition.

Mr. Den Dooven's lesson on December 6, will include a Flemish Egg Tart, which is an entirely new form of a custard pie; the Royal Lemon Tart, also entirely new, in which no flour or cornstarch is used; Pecan Tarts, presented for the first time; a novel way of serving cranberries; and the decorating of a platter for a Christmas turkey dinner.

In applying for your ticket of admission to Mr. Den Dooven's lesson next Friday, kindly give your membership in the Martha Lee Women's Club. If you have not already secured your membership card, your request for this free card of membership in New England's foremost women's organization may be included in your request for the Den Dooven lesson ticket.

P. S. If you do not send your application in time for a ticket for this valuable lesson, vacancies without tickets will be given any seats unoccupied by ticket holders by 2 p. m. Friday.

From Watch Tower

COMB honey, selling for 30c to 40c, brings to mind the deliciousness of hot baking powder biscuits, sweet butter and comb honey. (If your biscuits aren't as light and mouth watering as you would like to have them, perhaps you will let me send you a never-fail recipe?)

Cabbage, onions, cranberries and lettuce are moderately priced and plentiful, but green beans, hothouse tomatoes and cucumbers are in the luxury class.

Emperor and Malaga grapes are representative of this fruit and retail from 15c to 30c a pound. Tangerines are reasonable at 25c to 35c a dozen, and small native McIntosh apples are as low as 25c a dozen. Ninety cents is the usual retail price on Massachusetts Special eggs near Boston.

Broccoli at 15c to 18c a pound served with melted butter and grated Parmesan cheese is a dish for the gods, and don't forget mushrooms at 60c a pound and rhubarb at 3 lbs. for 25c. Honeydew melons are still available, too, and how we did enjoy the Honeydew Cocktail we made in the Martha Lee Kitchen in our Thanksgiving cooking-class, balls chilled and surrounded by grenadine.

Modern Cook Takes Inventory of Milk, Fruit, Vegetables

Madam Housewife of 1929 A. D. feeds her family according to a decidedly different code than did the homemaker of earlier epochs. The housewife of today is concerned about the preparation of well-balanced meals and the minerals and vitamins which the members of her family receive in their foods daily.

She looks over her stock of fruit, lettuce and other green vegetables just as automatically as her mother took an inventory of her flour, egg and salt supply. The intelligent housekeeper knows that the day's diet must include milk, a quart of it every day, as advocated by nutrition specialists of the National Dairy Council, leafy vegetables and fruit.

"Mrs. Anderson's Nut Cake," the $5 weekly prize-winning recipe submitted by Mrs. A. H. Seaver of South Main st., Cohasset, was found to be economical of time and labor, interesting in its novelty and intriguing in its palate appeal when tested in the Martha Lee Cooking School. It was then given the weekly award.

Review of Week's Work in Martha Lee Kitchen

WHILE the holiday bird is now "just a little memory" Christmas is near enough to interest you in the holiday frills which were the high lights in the Martha Lee Cooking School last week.

The emphasis on supper dishes —for some of us are expected to provide a supper even after an extra heavy holiday dinner.

Ham Timbales—a luscious combination of chopped ham, whipped cream and asparagus tips, gelatinized, accompanied by hot potato puffs, would be welcomed almost any time.

Or souffle toast—golden rounds of buttered toast covered with just the right combination of white sauce, grated cheese and fluffy eggs. Broiled for a moment or two, these puff to a delicious brown crispness—and are inexpensive, too.

The three-layer marshmallow fudge cake, which called for only 2 tbsps. of butter and was richly delicious, proved popular, as did the Ritz butter cookies, in which no leavening is used, but which tenderly melt in your mouth.

Recipes on request, of course, if you'll kindly give your membership number in the Martha Lee Women's Club.

EVAPORATED MILK DOUBLY RICH IN BUTTER FAT

A quart of ordinary cow's milk makes less than a pint of evaporated milk. Explanation of this lies in the fact the evaporated milk has less than half of the water content of ordinary milk. Government regulation provides that bottle milk shall have a fat content of 3.5 to 4 per cent, while evaporated milk must have a fat content of from 7.8 to 8.2 per cent.

RASPBERRY BAVARIAN

Dissolve 1 package raspberry fresh fruit flavored gelatine in 1 c. boiling water, with ¼ tsp. salt, 2 tsp. lemon juice. Add 1 c. cold water. Chill. When it begins to thicken beat in ½ c. cream (whipped) 'til well blended. Mold and chill. Serve with cold boiled custard sauce or cream. Serves eight.

Design in Ice Cream Cakes

EVELYN of Arlington writes: "I've decided that mince pie and plum pudding are too heavy desserts for a family that at least pretends to count their calories. Can you tell me whether those ice cream cakes that you had on Graduation Day in the Martha Lee Kitchen come in Christmas designs?"

We are sorry, Evelyn, that we couldn't answer your letter more promptly, but you forgot to attach any address. So we are hoping that you'll see this reply here. The ice cream cakes do come in special designs for Christmas, and I can't think of any more wholesome or delicious finish to a holiday meal. They should be ordered 24 hours ahead and are delivered, you know, packed in dry ice so that they will keep for several hours in perfect condition.

You can order a cake to serve 10 or 15 people, or perhaps you prefer one of the decorated melon molds or the individual molds in the shape of assorted fruit, flowers, or animals. Then there's luscious decorated log roll, too, with a frozen pudding center and whipped cream decorations. These ice cream cakes are made of solid ice cream in any combination of flavors, beautifully decorated with whipped cream and carrying any suggested design, sentiment, or emblem. They are splendid not only for Christmas but for parties, dances, bridges and community suppers.

POP-OVERS THAT FOP

1 cup flour.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 cup milk.
2 beaten eggs.

Sift flour and salt. Add milk gradually, then eggs and shortening. Beat batter five minutes with an eggbeater. Pour into very hot, well-buttered cast iron or heavy aluminum muffin pans or earthen cups or glass custard cups. Bake in a hot oven 30 minutes. Reduce heat to a moderate oven and bake 15 minutes. Do not open oven door while baking. This recipe makes ten.

BEWARE OF DIETS WITHOUT BULK

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Will Protect You

People are more careful than ever before about diet. They diet to clear complexions. They avoid certain foods to stay thin. They eat others to get fat. But many are running a serious danger because they are missing the "roughage" or "bulk" foods that every person must have to keep well.

As a result, constipation gets in its deadly work. Headaches, listlessness, circled eyes are only the first symptoms. In the end, constipation ruins health, wrecks beauty and may cause serious disease.

Don't neglect your daily roughage. That is nature's rule. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply it. A healthful cereal to eat each day. To use in cooked dishes or to serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to prevent it. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Urges Boom Spirit on Bostonians

Editor Boston American:

The great trouble with Bostonians is that they do not brag enough about the Hub. Why visit in California, they make your ears buzz with the merits of that state. When out there, hearing such outbursts for this "Eldorado," I often thought, why don't Bostonians boom their city more? Then while doing business in Kentucky, what did I see targets in many stores with the slogan: "Kentucky for Progress."

Are we afraid of overestimating Boston? Where would the West be without New England? Where would the Declaration of Independence be without Boston? Did not John Hancock sign it first? Now is the time for us to put Boston once more upon the map, during the tercentenary year. In 1768, Samuel Adams of Greater Boston stood alone in his belief that America must become independent of England. No kick coming here about the truth. Boston started the Declaration of Independence.

Low-Flying Planes Nuisance at Night

Editor Boston American:

The campaign against low flying of aeroplanes over cities and towns of this Commonwealth should have the endorsement of every community. I'm not fussy over this matter but somewhat annoyed by it. I live in a town where airplanes are flying daily over my home. In fact, I'm located on the air mail route from Boston to New York.

As the law requires flying over houses and other places at a height of 1000 feet, it should be obeyed. Sometimes in the night, though not often at this time, some plane is torturing people with its noise over the roof, and then it returns for some reason to repeat this entertainment. Of course, you cannot see the number of the plane on the bottom of the wing, for there's nothing to see, but there is a great deal to hear.

Does the Dew Rise or Fall, or Both?

Editor Boston American:

A group of reputable scientific men held an informal discussion in one of the rooms of the Harvard City Club about the problem of the dew.

Does it fall or does it rise? Several of the debaters claimed that dew fell. This is represented in poetry and makes some lines of verse radiant with meaning.

Then another claimed that it rises and never falls. Others asserted that dew both rises and falls.

The differences were so well maintained that no conclusion was reached. Every one pressed the belief that it was liquid but no one was certain about its motion.

Another topic for future discussion at the coming meeting in two months is: "Can some insects cure wound infections?" This is after the plan of Dr. W. S. Baer of Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Outside Influence Breaks Up the Home

Editor Boston American:

On the subject of marriage lately brought up in your Readers' column, let me quote something from the advice given by an aged minister of Boston, some years ago, which seems to fit in with the way that this subject has been discussed in your paper.

This is the minister's advice to the newly-wed:

"In a long life I have observed that home is made by the love of two hearts. If troubles are adjusted by these two hearts only, love will triumph, but if home conditions are told by either wife or husband to an outsider is consulted, love is stabbed and eventually dies. A real friend never meddles in any family affair.

"There is so much common sense in this advice that I think it will answer some of the difficulties in modern marriage.

Would End Poking Fun at the Senate

Editor Boston American:

Many business men of Boston resent the way that the U. S. Senate is often banged in addresses and articles.

Some public speakers when they have not anything to hit, begin to poke fun at the Senate. This always makes an unsatisfactory impression, especially among those who come here from other countries. When business organizations ask some noted defender of the tariff to speak either for or against it, we are often forced to listen to these attacks. This seems to be the greatest indoor sports game among some speakers. The Senate may be amusing at times, it may be long winded. It may be even aggravating, but I think it is more democratic in its measures than we give it credit for. Stop knocking the Senate of the U. S.

U. S. Now Building Greatest Dirigible

Editor Boston American:

The addresses upon dirigibles made in this city at the 20th Century Club did not mention in press reports the great dirigible being built at Akron, O., which, when finished, will be the greatest and largest lighter than air craft known.

Its measurements are 785 feet long, 146 feet high, with a capacity of 800,000 cubic feet of helium gas.

This machine, I am told, could carry a load of huge explosives that would blow up entirely Berlin, Paris and London. Such machines explain why we need peace more than ever.

Boys of 1630 Stole Pigs for Pastime

Editor Boston American:

Young men and boys of today steal autos at Halloween, but the boys of 200 years ago in Boston took their fun in pig stealing.

Now that the tercentenary is coming, it would do the critics some good if they were made aware of the fact that the boys of the colonial times did worse things than the boys of 1929.

The boys of 1630 would yell at the top of their voices "Fire!" "Fire!" and get people out into the middle of the road. Then one of their number would steal unseen into the kitchen, where the pig was roasting, and carry it off to some place where they would enjoy a sumptuous meal.

There were other pranks to their "credit" that put the boys of centuries ago in Boston far ahead of the youngsters of today. This is said because of a recent address in this city stating that boys had reached their notch of wickedness in this century.

Lindbergh Wins by Use of Care

Editor Boston American:

Has Col. Charles Lindbergh a charmed life?

Is it luck that carries him everywhere without accident? He dines. He accomplishes!

"Oh, he's a lucky chap!" said a man to me a short time ago.

Has he not, according to my idea, years of experience, courage of the right kind, carefulness before venturing upon any enterprise, and sound judgment? Does he not believe in a conscientious inspection of a machine before he trusts his life in it?

It is not luck; it is one or more of these stable qualities upon which he has built his confidence.

He never guesses that the plane is all right. He looks. He knows before cutting the air with it.

Luck is something that you never earn. It is hoisted upon you. Lindbergh earned what he has accomplished.

U. S. Has Had War Every 31 Years

Editor Boston American:

In answer to the question put by one of your readers about how long can a country keep out of war and what is the record of the United States in this respect, I would state that at the most, since the beginning of civilization, there have been in all only a little more than 200 years of peace.

The United States has never in its history gone more than 34 years without a war. May I add that the lack of plans and preparations has made every war cost from two to ten times what it otherwise would have cost.

Old Familiar Hotel Sign Now Missing

Editor Boston American:

With the passing of the United States Hotel, Adams House and Quincy House, there has also passed that particular feature of these old Boston hostelries, "Ladies' Entrance."

Modern hotels have dropped this distinction. We have to go in the lobby nowadays, smell tobacco and hear business buzz around our ears. Some women like this. I don't.

Cake Prize of $5 Goes to Cohasset Woman

ALTHOUGH the name of this week's prize winning recipe is "Mrs. Anderson's Nut Cake," the $5 cash prize goes to Mrs. A. H. Seaver of South Main st., Cohasset, who submitted the recipe.

Tested in the Martha Lee Cooking School, we found this nut cake economical of time and labor, interesting in its novelty and intriguing in its palate appeal. It also complies with the only condition of our weekly recipe contest which is that one or more of the ingredients used shall be food products advertised in the Boston Evening American, and mentioned in the recipe by their trade name.

Here is the recipe sent in by Mrs. Seaver and we certainly hope that you will try it and enjoy it as thoroughly as we did.

MRS. ANDERSON'S NUT CAKE
4 Hood's Special eggs, beaten separately.
6 Sunshine soda crackers.
1 c. Domino Granulated sugar.
1 c. walnuts.
Pinch Worcester salt.
1 tsp. Burnett's vanilla.

Grind the Sunshine soda crackers and walnuts through the meat chopper. Add the sugar to the beaten egg yolks as you would for a sponge cake, beating thoroughly. Add the soda crackers, walnuts and vanilla to the egg yolks and sugar. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two layer cake pans in moderate oven. When cool, spread with flavored and sweetened whipped cream between the layers and on top. If after the whipped cream has been spread on the cakes, it can stand for an hour or two, the flavor and consistency is much improved.

gration has caused socialism here to become Americanized.

It will be hereafter an American Anglo-Saxon socialism "with an American soul."

If socialism becomes Americanized, it will become dollarized. The American proletariat does not want to throw off its chains. It wants to trade last year's model, get a 1930 automobile, radio and electric washer, and be on its way to own a house, and build up a savings account. It does not know what proletariat means, can't even spell it.

When a big financial octopus or any one of the octopi bites, the public should protest.

When an octopus parts, and is good, the public should appreciate it and say "nice octopus, do it again."

A. T. and T., big telephone octopus, managed by Walter S. Gifford, has cut rates throughout the country, chiefly on calls between states.

Forty-five million calls are affected. The public will save $5,000,000 a year to begin, and more as service increases.

Five million dollars a year is five per cent on $100,000,000. It is not easy for a competent octopus to lose interest on that sum.

Today Wall Street will resume its march more sedately. Brokers' loans, that were above six billions, have dropped below three and a half billions. Eager borrowing for speculation has been cut in half, partly because the speculators had to stop, and pay their loans.

Brokers' seats will be worth less for a while, and then later, they will be worth more.

New Beauty Baths

DO you think of a beauty bath as the traditional expensive flushing in milk a la Lilian Russell or precious oils or herbs a la Cleopatra? Or have you discovered the new beauty bath that gives positive results for so little expense?

Just take two or more handfuls of the specially fine starch I told you about so many times—the kind that makes cotton feel like linen and twish it into half a tubful of warm water. The starch dissolves immediately. Then step into the water and enjoy the soothing sensation of a rich, cream-like bath.

Bathe and wash with your favorite soap as usual, step out and dry off. You will find your skin as smooth as velvet, due to the fine gritless coating left on which makes it unnecessary to use powder. The starch absorbs perspiration, eliminates oil from your face and gives protection against wind and sun without any sticky afterfeeling. Whether your skin is the oily or the dry type, one of these starch baths at least once a week is certainly effective and delightful to use.

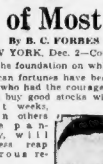
Courage Is Foundation of Most Fortunes in U.S.

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Courage is the foundation on which most American fortunes have been built. Those who had the courage to step in and buy good stocks within recent weeks, when others became panicky, will doubtless reap generous rewards.



B. C. Forbes

Conspicuously successful American men of affairs, almost without exception, have exhibited more backbone, more determination, more tenacity than the rest of us.

A recent book on Cornelius Vanderbilt relates instance after instance where the loughty old Dutchman exercised he utmost fearlessness in times of pressure. He possessed unusual mental as well as physical strength and courage.

John D. Rockefeller first won his foothold by going unflinchingly ahead when others were ripped by loubt. He did not hesitate. He his old me, to borrow every dollar sankers or anybody else would lend him, even though it was not absolutely certain that his ventures would turn out profitably. He had, however, ultimate confidence that he could achieve his purpose and he was willing to go over his head into debt in his resolute attempt.

The Carnegie fortune was built up mainly during crises when he little Scotsman's associates, alarmed by appalling losses, insisted on selling out to save something from the wreckage. Andy, keeping cool, could see beyond the storm, and could deliberately take his own money because of his sturdy faith that the sun would by and by shine again.

Henry Clay Frick, who amassed a fortune of $125,000,000, became a multi-millionaire within 10 years after the panic of 1873, which dampened his partners into throwing over their holdings in the infant coke industry, holdings which nobody but the foresighted young Swiss considered worth anything. Frick boldly induced Secretary Mellon's father to lend him $10,000 on collateral which did not quite measure up to recognized bank standards.

Charles M. Schwab had to take his courage in his hands when he first took over Bethlehem Steel, then a despised and crippled property, and it took him 10 years of unremitting labor at the mill to reach the point where Bethlehem Steel could borrow without having its obligations personally backed and guaranteed by him.

"The Lord hates a coward" and so does every one else. Henry Ford would not have become a billionaire had he not maintained a stiff upper lip under the most trying experiences covering years. Ford struggled on after associate after associate quit. And did he not exhibit another species of courage when, 16 years ago, he announced his revolutionary $5-a-day minimum wage?

Three out of the first five Woolworth stores were failures. But Frank Woolworth, although handicapped by scanty education, tried, tried and tried again. Napoleon was his favorite character in history and his worship of that dazzling meteor inspired much of his career in him. When I asked him what was his ambition, Woolworth instantly answered, "To set about—let nobody else do it—to borrow every dollar I can lay my hands on, and to build a store in every civilized town throughout the world."

The world is today mourning the passing of a man whose personality was loved by many, who unwaveringly exhibited such supreme courage that he became an international idol—Clemenceau. A few weeks ago mankind proclaimed an American hero—Edison. Why? Not merely because of what he has done for the human race, but because he accomplished it after a thousand—ten thousand—defeats which he did not permit to daunt him. Lindbergh gained greater fame in a shorter space of time than any other man living merely by his superlative courage in facing the Atlantic single-handedly in his modest craft of the air.

What America needs most of all today—in industry, in finance, in business, in the home—is calm, reasoned, judicious courage. Will we get it, or the opposite?

Study Shows Long-Term Investment Is Desirable

CONCLUSIVE evidence of the soundness of investing on a long-time basis is contained in an analysis of market movements over the last ten years, compiled by the statistical department of Baker, Simonds & Co.

The compilation reveals that the investment of $10,000 in each of the ten most active stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange during that week, would today show an appreciation in total value of $220,000 without taking into consideration dividends distributed during the period.

The total of the original investment amounted to approximately $98,500, a minimum of one hundred shares was established as the purchase basis in each of ten companies selected. At November 15, 1928, the date the majority of stocks reached their lowest levels of the most recent deflation, the ten issues had a market value of more $260,000. The current annual return on the assumed original investment is approximately $8,630.

Following is the detail of the compilation:

	Orig. Pur. July 1, 1921 shares	price 1919	Nov. 15, 1929	Equity
Penn & Pacific	150	$8	$10,200	$ 10,150

Cruciable Steel	100	97	9,600	15,600
Totals			$98,500	$220,100

In discussing the compilation, the firm's analyst says: "In the selection of stocks, the arbitrary method which was used in order to eliminate any possibility that subsequent events might have influenced our criterion, has resulted in a poorly balanced list, chiefly of the rail variety. Conclusive of the statement that it pays to invest in industrial American

He claims further that it is the answer to the question: "How has the purchase of common stocks, bought near the peak of a bull market, fared over the long swing?"

Sales and Profits Are Both Increased

Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing Company, reports that for October, 1929, sales were approximately 44 per cent greater and net profits 28 per cent ahead of October, 1928. Sales for the first 10 months of the calendar year 1929 were 22 per cent greater and net profits approximately 17 per cent greater than the like period last year. Mr. Flexner states that net earnings for the 10 months period were $480,771.36. "We are fortunate in excess of the full year's dividend requirements of $3.50 per share on the preferred stock and $1.60 per share on the common stock.

shrinkage in stock values of 48 per cent.

Average of stock prices for the week from Nov. 8 to 13 was $220.65, the lowest point since August, 1928.

The average for the 13th declined by a low of $198.70 against the peak in early September of $381. Brokers' loans on the same date were $4,172,000,000, a decrease since June, 1928, and compared with the peak of brokers' loans of $6,804,000,000 reached on Oct. 2.

BOSTON STOCK SEATS HELD CLOSELY

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Seats on the Boston Stock Exchange are closely held. The only seat available today for prospective buyers is that held by the Lee house which encountered difficulties during the recent decline. The price to be asked for this seat will be decided upon at a committee meeting to be held Wednesday. The last seat brought $45,000. No seats on the "big board" have been marked down since the "break," it is reasonable to expect a lower price to be set for the Boston seat. Another seat, vacated by the demise of a member, will eventually go on the local market.

Note Dun's report that "in many industries orders are increasing and the outlook is much more favorable."

It is somewhat unusual for stockholders to be able to get more for their shares than the market price. This situation is shown to exist by announcement that American Tobacco is able to handle stockholders who do not desire to avail themselves of the plan providing $27 a share cash for their stock may withdraw their stock from deposit within 30 days. Holders of depositary receipts and who do not withdraw prior to Dec. 31, 1929, will be deemed to have assented to the plan. In order to enable stockholders who have not yet deposited their stock to take advantage of the plan, the company's time has extended the time for deposit of stock until and including Feb. 1, 1930. The closing prices of American Telegraph & Cable stock on Wednesday list was 24¼; high for year 32⅝, low 17.

Eastern Steamship, operating the world's largest coastwise system managed to increase its freight business 6½ per cent in the first nine months of the current year with a resultant increase in earnings. The company is planning on a new liner ship, one each for the New York-Norfolk, New York-Yarmouth and Boston-St. John lines. The company's cash and liquid sources, plus its replacement funds, will enable it to carry out this program without additional financing, assuming, as is likely, that 75 per cent of the initial cost of the vessels will be provided by a loan, at low interest rates, from the Shipping Board. Shareholders have voted to split up the stock into three for one, which will take effect early this week. We understand that it is the intention to pay quarterly stock dividend of 1 per cent on the split-up stock, placing it on a 4 per cent stock dividend basis.

The railroads are in most cases hoping to see the day when the decline in passenger revenues, brought about by inroads of the automobile, will cease. This day may be nearer at hand than expected. Railway Age says railroad passenger business is showing smallest decline in 1929 since 1920, and is still declining, the rate occurring in day coach business as sleeping car travel is ahead of last year. Total loss for first nine months of this year about 1 per cent compared with 6 per cent in 1928.

An analysis by the National Industrial Conference Board of owners of blocks of 50 shares or more of an issue of 7 per cent preferred in a public utility revealed the identity of the "average stockholder." According to the analysis, he consists of 166 accountants, 81 artists, 1,042 bankers and brokers, 155 barbers, 52 beauty culturists, 65 bricklayers, 315 butchers, 483 carpenters and chauffeurs, 2987 clerks, 61 dentists, 346 doctors, 623 domestics, 149 draftsmen, 372 dressmakers, 340 electricians, 558 engineers, 1048 factory workers 518 foremen, 4029 housekeepers, 119 janitors, 499 laborers, 641 laundry workers, 73 lawyers, 499 machinists, 115 mail carriers, 496 managers, 158 manufacturers, 520 mechanics, 926 merchants, 91 messengers, 157 metal workers, 274 nurses, 182 painters 40 plasterers, 267 plumbers, 1467 policemen, 335 printers, 312 railroad men, 51 seamen and 314 secretaries. A rather representative fellow, this "average stockholder!"

Return of easy money and decline in stock prices, which has brought investors attention once more to bond market, makes considerable foreign financing in this country possible during next year, according to Grosvenor Jones, chief of finance and investment division of Department of Commerce. Cuba may raise some money to finance new central highway. Bond issues are expected from Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Jugoslavia and Poland. Japan and Australia may seek limited amounts of new capital.

Miss PAT by Elenore Meherin

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom old Bryce squanders a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, rages about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns swears revenge. He robs the office safe and is captured after a gun fight. Preparations are being made for Pat to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the youth of today, Mrs. Dawn hopes that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is. Pat's faith rises and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Bryce stops manufacturing the plane factory.

CHAPTER 23

THREE people had disappeared—completely, mysteriously. Twenty-four hours were passed since any one of them had been seen. Not a clue to their whereabouts yet discovered.

Airplanes searched from every lane of heaven. All roads leading from the city were guarded, ferry boats were watched every little golden-haired child and every young man in a brown suit who went in or out of San Francisco were stopped and questioned. The whole vicinity of the Skyline boulevard, where the abandoned auto was found, had been combed.

Every petite girl in a green hat and green sport suit had to answer the detective or another. The whole city entered the search. Pictures of winsome Pat Dawn were flashed on the front page of every paper.

The disappearance remained absolute. Not an echo flung back from the void into which these three had vanished.

The newspapers summed up the known facts:

At 2 o'clock the bookkeeper at the plant had noticed Guy Elliott at the door of his drawing room, he had heard him whistle. He wore a brown suit and a tan hat.

At 4.15 a woman—a Mrs. Harriet Taylor—living in Laguna sq., had seen a tall man, in a brown suit leading a little boy, about three or four, to a gray sedan. The child was laughing and appeared to follow eagerly. Mrs. Taylor, shown a picture of Billy Bryce, gave an unqualified identification. But the man wore a soft, tan-colored hat with a rather wide brim. He had it pulled down over his eyes. She could only swear that he was young, tall, thin.

At 3 o'clock Patricia Dawn, known to mechanics at the hangar, had arrived at Mills Field. She [illegible] though she had come from school. She waited ten or fifteen minutes and then climbed into the cabin. When the mechanics started tuning up the motor in obedience to orders received, presumably by the pilot, the girl had risen, her head laughingly from the cabin. This was the last time anyone had actually seen Pat Dawn.

"About a quarter of six," said Don Mouse, mechanic at the field, "I removed the blocks from the wheels of Mr. Elliott's plane. He took off immediately.

"No — I can't positively swear that it was Mr. Elliott. It was getting dark. I didn't see him come into the field. No, I didn't see him climb into the cockpit. I'd gone back to the hangar. Then he called and mentioned that he was ready. I went out and took away the blocks.

"At the time I was certain it was Mr. Elliott. It was someone very familiar with the working of the plane. That I can swear."

So Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock Guy's abandoned auto, with the gold hairs of the child found on the mat and Guy's missing plane furnished the sole evidence on which a theory could be built.

Had Guy Elliott done this—had he stolen the child of Barbara Bryce? And why?

The relatives most poignantly concerned threw little light on the mystery. The police badgered William Bryce. Had he an enemy—a disgruntled employee—a business rival—a client made revengeful because of money losses? Think back, now.

Bryce told of his break with Guy and of Guy's threat.

The police seized on this, but they kept it quiet. They summoned Laura Dawn and Guy's sister Sallie.

Laura admitted that her daughter was engaged to Guy. When pressed, she also admitted that she was aware of a disagreement between the youth and his partner. But, NO, she had not heard Mr. Elliott threaten revenge. He was incapable of such a move. He was but a kind and happy boy. No, her daughter had NOT eloped. She was NOT unhappy at home. Of her own volition Patricia Dawn had NOT disappeared.

Even Dickie Dawn was called. The youngster's black eyes flashed

BOOTLEGS, TRAPPED BY STUDENTS, APPEAR IN COURT

State's Deer Season Opens With a Lot of 'Bangs!'

6 ARRAIGNED AFTER RAIDS BY POLICE

Harvard Men Help the Officers Get the Rum Sellers

As result of raids by federal prohibition agents acting on information furnished by Harvard students, six men were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin S. Jenney today on counts variously charging them with illegal possession, sale and transportation of liquor.

Morris Wallis of 8 bunker st and Joseph J Diamond of Devon st, both [illegible] were captured as they were about to enter Russell Hall, a Harvard dormitory in Bow st, Cambridge were held in $1500 each for a hearing Dec 10. They were alleged to be delivering 24 quarts of rye to occupants of the building.

James Martignetti of Hanover st, owner of a Garden st cafe, and Ralph DiMonteo of Hanover st, a waiter, were each held in $500 for hearing December 10 on charges of illegal possession.

Martignetti was also held in $500 with two other waiters, Paul Simonetti of Cooper st and Gina Zazzola of Hanover st, for illegal sale on November 21, 26 and 30.

The identity of the Harvard students who tipped off the federal agents was not revealed today by Maj. Henry Goodenough, assistant prohibition administrator.

"I didn't ask them names, he said and even if I did know I would not tell the public. I suppose the men were Harvard students. As far as that goes, we treat Harvard the same as we would any other place. We had complaints from citizens and we acted."

Rank liquor, at exorbitant prices, was believed responsible for the raids. Harvard students, enraged at having to pay $135 per case for something represented to be liquor, banded together and started a war on "gyp" bootleggers.

Driving their own cars, clad in raccoon coats, the students led federal agents from place to place, making purchases while the raiders remained in the background, ready to leap out and seize marked bills.

Willis, it is alleged, is one of the men whose advertisements appeared in the Harvard Lampoon in the Dartmouth game number of the magazine.

New Working Terms for Longshoremen

The new wage and working agreement proposed by the transatlantic steamship agents has been accepted by the International Longshoremen's Association.

Joseph F. Ryan of New York, general president of the union, recommended the acceptance of the agreement, as did the committee report after a mass meeting of the three local unions in Faneuil Hall.

"Gas" Station Petition

The Newton Board of Aldermen have received a petition from the Newton Cemetery Corporation asking for a permit to construct and maintain a station for the sale of gasoline in the northwest corner of Beacon and Walnut sts, Newton Highlands. A public hearing on the petition will be held by the board this evening.

Hit and Injured Crossing Street

While crossing Charles st at the center crossing between the Common and the Public Garden, Charles Phinney, 76, of Walnut st, Beacon Hill, was hit by an auto[illegible] and suffered concussion of the brain.

The machine which struck him was driven by Burton A. Curtis of Nashua, N. H.

GAME IS SHY, AND TAKES TO WOODS

Several Kills Reported Early; Many Hunters on Ground at Break of Day

Deer posted on the [illegible] during the year became fair game at [illegible] today for hundreds of Massachusetts huntsmen as the two weeks' hunting season began.

Reports of kills began to arrive by mid-morning attesting to the fact that deer are plentiful and hunters more so.

Conditions are good enough it is said that the record will snap easily when it is time to take the [illegible] photos of the woods, where they are less easy to find. There is snow enough in the Berkshire country to make tracking easy.

In the Connecticut valley counties a light fall would be appreciated. Many hunters left home over the week-end so as to be on hand at their favorite hunting ground as soon as the law was lifted over the rising sun.

Dozens of hunters set out from Boston for the Cape section.

Daniel Beane of West Springfield was once to the belief that there's something in a name, at least when it comes to deer hunting.

Beane shot a 190-pound 10-point buck in Windham county, the hunting ground on which a year old today, and thereby repeated his success of last season. He declaims any relationship to the man who made Kentucky famous.

1412 Deer Killed in Vermont "Open Season"

Montpelier, Vt., Dec 2 (AP)—The first deer season in Barrington announced today that corrected reports showed 1412 deer had been killed in the open season this year against 1038 in 1928.

CEDRIC LANDS 315 IN HUB

Delayed more than a day by gales and heavy seas, the White Star liner Cedric reached port today, docking at Commonwealth Pier with 315 passengers for here.

Miss Beatrice Harrison, English cellist, debarked here to entrain for Washington, where she will fill a White House engagement at the invitation of President Hoover. She told reporters she intends to play the number entitled "Melody," written by Gen. Charles G. Dawes former Vice-President and now ambassador to the Court of St. James. She was met by Charles E. Ware, Jr., of the Boston port authority.

Sir William Beveridge K. C. B., director of the London School of Economics, was another passenger. He is on route to the University of Chicago to take part in the dedication of a new social science department. During his 13 days stay here he will deliver three lectures.

After debarking her Boston passengers the Cedric left for New York with 490 more, including W. Wedgewood Bowen, scientist, who has been eight months in the Belgian Congo and Angola collecting birds and natural history specimens for the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences.

Youngest Student at Radcliffe Only 15

Radcliffe's youngest student, Miss Joann Lumansky of New Bedford is only 15 years, 10 months old and not big ambition in life is to be a music teacher in the schools after her graduation in the class of 1933.

"I am not particularly studious," Miss Lumansky declared. "I like to study, but I think one must also have a hobby outside to be a really good student. Mine is dancing."

Statistics of the Radcliffe class of '33 show that the oldest student is a married woman of 39 years and that the average age of the 15 members of the class is 17 years.

Thirty-six per cent of the fathers of the freshman class are for 26 hours. Of 182 girls, 80 have either one or both parents born in Europe, 89 have both parents born in the U. S., and 73 have one parent born here.

Massachusetts mothers lead in birthplaces of mothers, with Russia second. The same figures apply to fathers of members of this year's entering class.

Business men are most prominent among occupations of fathers, with lawyers, merchants and physicians next.

CARGO WORTH 2 MILLION

After getting her baptism in westerly gales and big green combers that smashed over her bow, the Prince Line freighter Cingalese Prince today ended her maiden voyage at this port with a $2,000,000 cargo.

The Cingalese Prince made a dozen ports in the Far East after her completion at a Glasgow shipyard.

Capt F Marshall reported the trip the worst November crossing in his experience. With an older vessel he said he would have feared for the safety of his valuable cargo.

Stidger Pleads for Universal Church

[illegible] Christ and the property of the whole race, said Dr. William L. Stidger in a sermon at Copley Methodist Church. He came to establish the Christian family and be an elder brother to all people.

"The time has come for the so-called Christian church to open its doors to all races, colors, kinds and stations of humanity if it intends to express the spirit of Christ.

WHY STUDENTS DODGE CHURCH

Boston students today gave Baptist pastors, meeting in Ch[illegible]man Hall Tremont Temple, several reasons why many students do not attend church.

Many ministers have a shoddy way of answering students' questions on religion when they demand a clear cut definition of life and what it involves," William [illegible] told the clergy.

Nothing wins a young person to church quicker than a good speaker W. Jackson said.

Another thought the barring of a colored man as an interne in a Boston hospital was an example of one phase that keeps students from attending church.

TUNNEL PLANS APPROVED

Plans submitted by the city for the construction of the $12,000,000 tunnel to East Boston were approved today by the State department of public works.

These are the plans that Martin Lomasney opposed, claiming the department had authority to make a sweeping investigation of the whole project.

The attorney general however, ruled the department approval was limited to the harbor tide lines.

15 SAILORS FACE LOSS OF 'HOME'

Shall the 13 old sailors at the Quincy Sailors Home be deprived of their ancient home?

This is the issue raised today at the probate session of Quincy district court, before Dudley Ranney, master of chancery. The board of trustees of the home is seeking permission to sub-divide the 165 acres into house lots and demolish the famous old abode of tars.

The inmates are resenting action. They style themselves the "only thirteen," and are being aided by various military orders including the Spanish War Veterans.

The inmates range in age from 60 to 90 years. Two of the men were sailors on the U. S. S. Kearsarge. Some 60 years ago the Kearsarge Association appropriated $5000 to care for its men at this sailors' home.

Arthur Sullivan has been retained as attorney for the protection of the Kearsarge fund, on behalf of local fraternal societies. Maj. Judson Hannigan of Boston is attorney for the "unlucky thirteen," at the direction of Richard Rowles of Boston, former navy officer and past commander of the Spanish War Veterans.

The value of the property is given as $164,000, while securities total $288,000.

An estimate has been made that fully $500,000 would be raised by the project sale. The money will be turned over to the Naval Relief Society at Washington. The 13 men, however, would be "farmed out" to other naval institutions.

Four of the veterans are attending the hearing, the others being too feeble to leave the home.

HONEST POSTAL MESSENGER, 15, TO BE HONORED BY COMPANY

HE RETURNED LOST PURSE TO OWNER

Will Meet Officials of Company on Free Trip to New York

Honesty is certainly the best policy, fellers!

Take the case of Frank Lee, 15-year-old East Boston Postal Telegraph Co. messenger. You remember reading in the Boston Evening American how Frank found a wallet containing $300 the first day he worked as a messenger and returned it to the owner, John J. O'Connell.

Well, more honors are being heaped upon Frank because of the fine spirit he displayed. He is going to New York for a few days next month at the expense of the company, and while in the metropolis will attend the big meeting of executives which takes place annually just after the holiday season.

While at the meeting he will be presented to some of the principal officials of the company. It is going to be a big event for Frank as it will be his first trip to the "big town." He will live at a first class hotel, have the best food it affords and will also be invited to visit some of the best shows there.

He is now wearing a wrist watch which was presented to him last night by Charles Gibbons, city superintendent of the company, at the Harry E. Burroughs Newsboys' Foundation Home, in the presence of 250 messenger boys and newsboys.

In making the presentation Mr. Gibbons said the boy's honesty and truthful work entitled him to the honor bestowed on him and he hoped his example would be followed by all boys and girls who learned of his act.

At the time young Lee found the wallet and returned it the owner thought him a bit and gave him $25.

"Gee, it sure does pay to be honest," said Frank, when he learned of the proposed trip to New York. I would have returned the wallet anyway, even if I didn't get a cent, merely carried out the teaching of my father from earliest childhood when I returned the man's all I and money."

FALSE ALARM GANG JAILED AND FINED

3 Get Jail Terms and $100; 6 Just Assessed $100; All Appeal

Jail sentences and $100 fines for three and $100 fines for six others was the punishment given by Judge Sears today in Salem district court following convictions for illegal crime of pulling fire alarms.

All nine young men, who were convicted largely on the testimony of Owen Rudberg who had to mail state's evidence, entered an appeal. Those receiving jail sentences were:

Walter Skinner, 25, former N. E. League ball pitcher, six months and $100 fine.

Frank Phinney, 22, captain of 1928 Danvers high school baseball team, three months and $100 fine.

Arthur Sherbiney, 19, laborer, one month and $100 fine.

The other young men whose ages ranged between 17 and 25 years, who were fined $100 were Joseph Murphy, Joseph Sullivan, James Ivan, John Joyce and Roger Ganger.

The case of the young man who testified against his friends was continued until February 1. He had been the tenth arrested a month ago by police and Danvers who had been conducting a campaign against false alarm nuisances.

Since the arrest of the young men a few weeks ago there have been no false alarms reported. Previous to that period scores of such alarms were pulled, often as many as three in half an hour.

All Shrine 'Cures' to Be Probed Under Oath

Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of the House of Study at Weston [illegible] on the radio of steps that the Catholic Church will take before a final report is made on "cures" at the grave of Father Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

"First the individual must be examined under solemn oath," he said.

"Second, the doctors who treated the patient before he visited the grave must be examined under oath.

"Third, in this examination all medical records, medical charts, X-ray pictures, etc., must be examined by scientific medical authorities.

"Fourth, the testimony of all witnesses who are placed under oath must be gathered.

"Fifth, medical examinations must be made and testimony of doctors must be taken regarding the condition of the patient after the alleged cure.

"Sixth, the complete evidence gathered in the way just described must be laid before the proper tribunal which will examine it, the documents with the most painstaking care, and will come to a decision only when absolute certainty has been reached.

"All this and more is required before one can speak of a miracle at Malden.

It was revealed today that Cardinal O'Connell, unaccompanied except by his own chauffeur, paid a visit to the shrine of Father Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, on Saturday.

REDUCE FARES ON AIR LINE

Air travel rates between New York and Boston have been reduced 20 per cent, it has been announced by the Colonial Air Transport Co.

Steady commuters in addition may obtain a 24-trip ticket, good for one year, at 20 per cent under the new reduced fare. Flying schedules between the Hotel Statler, Boston, and Newark Airport, Newark, N. J., will remain the same.

The lower rates are made possible, officials said, by the growing air-mindedness of the public. During the eight and a half months of operation, more than 4000 passengers have been carried by the air line.

Carloadings

St. Paul handled 151,289 revenue freight cars in the first 22 days of November against 154,257 in same period last year. From Jan. 1 to Nov. 22 the road handled 3,822,[illegible] more cars than in the same period of 1928.

DRIVER FACES FOUR CHARGES

Four complaints were granted in Brighton court today against Sylvester P. Ranfield, 22, of Hill st., Charlestown, motorist alleged to have been released from City Hospital on his claim that he was a nephew of Capt. Florence J. Sullivan, dead fire department hero.

Ranfield's car was in collision with another machine in Commonwealth ave., Allston, and his automobile, with Miss Genevieve Donovan, 26, of Marine rd., South Boston, overturned.

The Charlestown man is alleged to have attempted to escape, but was captured in the rear of a nearby apartment house.

The complaints against him charge him with going away after causing personal injury, going away after causing property damage, operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and operating after his license had been suspended.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's best friend, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the keynote of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling — sick headache — torpid liver — constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

CANADIENS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Pendergast, Spellman on All-Scholastic Team

PLAYERS SELECTED FOR BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ALL-SCHOLASTIC TEAM

SCHOOLBOY STARS ON 'ALL' TEAM

By BILL CONNELL

AN all-scholastic eleven today is picked by the Boston Evening American.

Weeks of [illegible] comparison of players and arrangement of statistics showing exactly what each school-man of note had accomplished, were required in order that every player should get the consideration which was his due.

The 11 boys selected are the pick of the school football world. No lad was left off of a team because he played for one high school outside Greater Boston.

An All-Star team should have no [illegible] than one player from each school in the area [illegible] of the 55 [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] to be compared with players of Greater Boston and the North and South Shore [illegible] from the western section of the Bay State are left out.

Here are the [illegible] honored for the first string team. Not only is each one a brilliant individual player, but each also is a great team man.

Lawrence "Mongo" Spellman, Medford high quarterback, has been picked as pilot and captain of the Boston Evening American "All" team. Spellman can kick, pass, run with the ball, interfere, diagnose enemy plays superbly and tackle hard. Not only that, but he is a great leader and signal caller. The splendid work of Spellman largely was responsible for the success of Medford, which lost only to Waltham and Malden.

HALFBACKS ARE STARRED

The halfbacks of the All team are fine. William Pendergast, Waltham star, was about the fastest ringster in the state this year. He all around player and a great [illegible] that, but [illegible] through in every game, always managing to break away from the [illegible] or three tacklers who were digging his every move. Pendergast was good on defense.

Norman Rand of Salem is a very versatile back. He, like Spellman, is outstanding in all departments of the game, including defensive play. He always came through when the going was toughest.

Tony Geniawicz, Lynn English fullback, is one of the finest players in his position to work on a New England gridiron in many years. Big and very powerful, Geniawicz is capable in every department of the game.

The ends, John McCarthy, Malden and Donald Smith, Waltham, are fast, good on offense and defense, and each is a sure receiver of forward passes.

Canadiens-Bruins Battle Tomorrow

HOWARD MORENZ, brilliant Canadiens center, back in scoring form after an easy start, apparently is ready to go the war path tomorrow night at the Boston Garden when [illegible] Canadiens and Bruins mix in their first clash since the world series strife of last spring.

Morenz added a goal and an assist to his scoring record in his last start against Americans, which promises to be just as hard a team as a year ago. This season as a scrap against this season as a year ago.

Canadiens like the Bruins are away to a fast start in the National League campaign. They have played seven games and have been defeated but once, scoring a total of 26 goals to 19 by opponents, and apparently clicking pretty well for a team that was believed to have shot its bolt when the Bruins passed it three straight last March.

No team in the National League boasts Canadiens individual ball game when it is at top strides through Howie Morenz probably will offer the objection that such a statement should be qualified by the fact that the Bruins alone can equal that individual brilliance.

If Canadiens are going well as this [illegible] the same can be said of the Boston team. They showed what strong power is packed in the team when they tallied six goals against Pittsburgh, the most encouraging part of which was that three of those goals were scored with the Carson forward line on the ice.

The Bruins attack to date has been carried by the Weiland line with Cooney, Dutch and Dit Clapper tallying frequently. The return of Harry Oliver to the Carson line, however, promises a better balanced attack.

Oliver signalized his return to the game after a two weeks absence by getting two goals, and lifting Carson and Galbraith to the point where they had two assists each. The fact that Percy Galbraith has shaken his jinx and is assisting in the scoring was the most significant development of the western trip.

Prout A. A. Ends Fine Football Season

The Prout A. A. football team closed a very successful season by defeating the St. Josephs, 12-0, on the Boston Common, in the 10th and final game of the season. The Prout A. A. has been undefeated this year, but was held to a 6-6 tie by the Suffolks of Cambridge.

PRO GOLFERS IN TITLE TOURNEY

Los Angeles Cal., Dec. 2—A six-day tournament that will decide the 1929 championship of the Professional Golfers' Association began today at Hillcrest.

One of the four big tournaments of the land, the event ranks with such national championships as the open, amateur, open, and women's [illegible].

Led by Walter Hagen, the field is the most brilliant ever assembled in Southern California for tournament play.

Hagen, five times wearer of the crown, he will start after again today and present British open [illegible] leader, is the "big gun" of the pro golfing clan. He is expected to be the sternest challenge to the hopes of Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, defending champion.

Closely trailing these two outstanding favorites are such contenders as Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith, Tommy Armour, Johnny Farrell, Abe Espinosa, William Melhorn, Harry Cooper—names that are bywords in the annals of the loyal and ancient pastime.

Sarazen captured the national open and P. G. A. titles in 1922 and successfully defended his P. G. A. laurels a year later. Smith showed that he must be reckoned with, winning the $5000 Berkeley open Saturday with 280 strokes for the 72-hole event.

B. U. SIX OPENS SEASON FRIDAY

Boston University's varsity hockey six will play its first game of the season with the University Club at the latter's Friday night. These two teams represent the best of the college and club sixes and it is expected that this initial clash of the winter will bring a good turnout of fans to the St. Botolph st. rink.

The University Club proved itself the class of amateur hockey in this section last year, and also pasted defeats on visiting New York club teams. The club men will be represented by another strong outfit this winter and will have its usual roster of former college stars in the lineup.

The Terriers are working hard in preparation for the opening game of the season and will go after their opponents at top speed from the opening whistle in an effort to wear down their more experienced rivals.

The University six will have the experience but the college boys have been on the ice longer and should be in better condition, which they will need to be in order to outskate the clubmen.

Coach Vaughan of B. U. has selected his starting six, and with the exception of Bert Grodberg in goal, every member of the team was a regular a year ago.

The forward line remains intact from last season and has Ben Currier at center, and Dick Lombard and Holmes Whitmore on the wings. The defense will be handled by Bergholtz and Elliot, at the points, and Grodberg in goal.

Marine Tigers Win

South Boston Marine Tigers defeated St. Peters of Dorchester, 3 to 0, in a City Park league championship game at Ronan's Park, Dorchester. Crimins and McLaughlin registered the Tigers' touchdowns, Stapleton kicking the extra point.

LEWIS TACKLES PAT McGILL

Paul Bowser will present his third great show in three weeks next Thursday night in the Arena.

Strangler Lewis will meet Pat McGill in the feature bout of the best all-star card ever offered here.

In the semifinal bout, the popular Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Cambridge will tackle Joe DeVito of Providence in a match which will go one fall to a finish.

Ed George, former captain of the wrestling team at the University of Michigan, will make his third local appearance, this time against Sam Skiratky of Chelsea. The undefeated Henri Diglane, champion of France, will tackle John Grandoivich. One more bout will complete the card.

McGill has put on display the best exhibitions of wrestling Boston has ever seen in the past two months. Two weeks ago, he gave Gus Sonnenberg the most severe opposition of his career at the Arena, and last Thursday night he trampled over Joe Malcewicz.

Montreal Has Strong Team for Inter-City Bouts

FORMSBY IS HOPE OF VISITORS

HOPES of a Montreal victory in the first intercity boxing tournament of the season, which will be staged at the Boston Arena, a week from tonight, will rest entirely upon the good right hand of Nick Formsby, a light-heavyweight, who will make his first appearance in this city.

According to the Canadian officials, Formsby is the best ring prospect developed in the Dominion in the past 10 years.

Formsby will be a member of the Montreal team of four boxers who will face the champions of Boston, New York, Grand Rapids and Toronto in this proposed tournament, which is expected to prove the most successful early season amateur ring event ever staged in this city.

The tournament will be conducted under the direction of the New England Association of the A. A. U. and will comprise bouts in the eight championship classes.

16 TO REPRESENT HUB

Boston will be represented by 16 boxers, which are expected to be selected tomorrow. It is expected that the entire tournament will consist of 24 bouts, sufficient action for the most exacting amateur follower.

Formsby, who has never appeared here with any former intruding Maple Leafs is said to carry a tremendous punch. He is a newcomer of whom great things are expected.

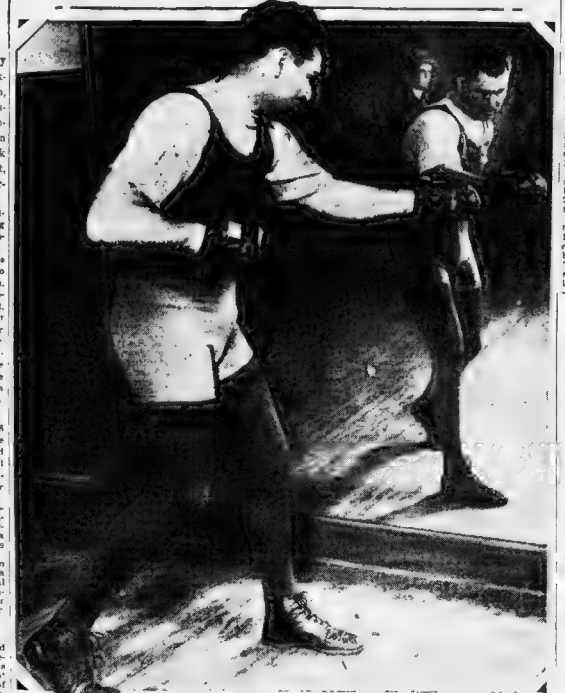
George Courturier, who came to Boston in 1928 will return as a member of this year's Montreal team. He is one of the star amateurs of his country, a hard hitter and an exceptionally clever boxer. He is a lightweight.

McLEOD IN FEATHER CLASS

Harold McLeod, a baby faced Irishman, will be Montreal's representative in the featherweight class in the tournament. He has not dropped a decision in a year of steady fighting. Gordon Sauve, ex-provincial champion, will be the 115-lb. class representative. He laid off for a year but is reported to be better than ever now.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SEEING HIMSELF AS OTHERS DO



Jack Dempsey gave many fight followers a genuine thrill when they saw the Manassa Mauler once again going through the motions of shadow boxing before a mirror. No comeback, however. Jack's content to rest on his past laurels. He's just going through these exercises at Stillman's gym to keep physically fit. (International Newsreel photo.)

Rockne and Pals Work on 'All' Team

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 2 (INS)—The committee composed of "three wise men and a cripple" adjourned here today, their annual task of selecting the official all-America team completed.

In the sick room of Knute Rockne they gathered, T. A. D. Jones, Pop Warner and Bill Alexander. It required 4½ hours for the four mentors to separate the near stars from the stars, and the stars from the phenoms.

Rockne, sitting half propped up in bed to receive his guests, and the more ardent fans and tabs mentioned jokingly referred to the committee as "three wise men and a cripple."

Selections of the committee are to be made known next Sunday.

HEIKKILA WINS HARRIER TITLE

Eino Heikkila of Norwood, running under the colors of Dorchester Club, captured the New England cross-country championship at Franklin Park from a field of 34 of the best harriers in this section. Heikkila's time for the six miles and one half mile course was 33m. 34s.

Robert Delcample of B. A. A., former Dartmouth athlete, finished second in 33m. 45s., approximately 40 yards behind. Paul Kansky of Belmont placed third.

Jimmy Henigan, veteran distance runner, faltered somewhat, for the best he could do was place fourth, 24 seconds after Heikkila crossed the line.

For the first four miles of the race, Heikkila, Henigan, Dalrymple, Barbaro and Kansky were out front, closely bunched. Henigan and Barbaro were the first to feel the pace. They dropped back while the trio still kept forging ahead without a let up.

GREEN TO LOSE 9 LETTER MEN

Hanover, N. H., Dec 2—Of nine letter men which will be lost to the Dartmouth football team by graduation next June, six are from Greater Boston. These six are Al Marsters of Arlington, Ed Jeremiah of Somerville, Bart McDonough of Woburn, Mil McInnes of Roxbury, Hal Booma of Swampscott and Snub Poehler of Everett. The other three who will be lost to the squad are Tom Longenecker of Delta, O., Ellie Armstrong of New Haven, and Cowboy Cole of Altus, Okla.

Marsters played only half the season for Dartmouth, due to a spine injury, received in the Yale fracas, but time demonstrated his marvellous class; Jeremiah was one of the fastest men on the squad and a very capable defensive back who saved Dartmouth from a Cornell defeat by tackling the opponent's end after he had caught a forward and had a clear field ahead of him.

McDonough did not see action except in the earlier games of the season in which he played a good game. He was first-string quarter all last season.

Booma has gained the attention of many All-America tabulations and has played a remarkable game at end in all save the Yale encounter, in spite of various ailments which have handicapped him all season.

McInnis, another end, warmed the bench during the preliminary games, due to an injured knee, but came back strong in the Yale fracas to continue the good work for the rest of the season as a substitute to Tydeken.

And last of the Hub men, we find "Snub" Poehler, who made his letter on last year's team, but who has found the sledding rough this fall with Hal Andres and Ping Berry supplying all the Dartmouth end. Cannel, and his staff could ask for.

Bobby Jones Acts as Good-Will Envoy

Atlanta, Dec. 2 (AP)—Add to the activities of Bobby Jones, golf monarch, the duties of an international good-will ambassador. Bobby has agreed to serve as chief aide to the marshal of the parade here Wednesday for a party of distinguished Cubans accompanying Havana athletic teams to Atlanta for a series of games with the Georgia Military Academy.

Schoolboy Stars on American 'All' Team of the college teams. Harvey was great on defense. He used his hands splendidly to break up an interference and get into tackles.

The guards James Moran, B. C. High, and Alphonse Pevarnik, Salem were good all year. Many of the B. C. H. plays called for running guards to come out of the line and act as interferers. Moran could pull out of the line and get around fast. Salem did not use running guards as much as B. C. H., but Pavenny could do a fine job in any kind of guard play.

John Connell, Mechanic Arts as good as any schoolboy center at present, was the captain of his team, and his all-around play made the eleven a tough foe for any of the teams it faced.

Johnny Del Isola, Everett deserves special mention, and is has been selected as a utility man for the first string "All" team. Del Isola can play, and did play this year, both on the line and in the backfield. He probably was the finest defensive back in Eastern Massachusetts. He is a good kicker. Del Isola kept Everett up there all the time and it is notable that while Everett, inexperienced played a stiff schedule, none of Everett's opponents were able to beat Denny Gildea's eleven by big margins.

HARD TO FIND BETTER TEAM

The "All" players of the first team have been mentioned in some detail. It would be difficult to find 11 school players nearly as strong as those of the Boston Latin American team.

The boys mentioned on the second and third teams as well as those on the Honor Roll represent the other fine players of the year. Either the second or the third team would give that first string eleven a whale of a battle.

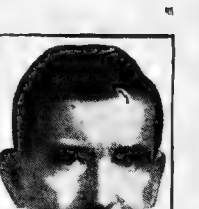
There is no fancy name for SPIT

Don't let this "lip-operation" have a part in making your cigar.

Face the facts . . . smoke Cremo . . . certified free from the menace of spit.



Price alone doesn't make a cigar safe for your mouth. At any price there can be no tastier cigar than Certified Cremo . . . and, in addition, it's clean.

You get the greatest enjoyment from Certified Cremo—free of the menace of the old filthy cigar shops where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends!

Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by United States Government approved methods. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the danger of spit. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

A suggestion, deliberately made with confidence to all smokers: Try a Certified Cremo—made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, all ripe and mellow. Each leaf goes through a slow, expensive maturing process that develops the fullest flavor and mildness. You never realized how good Certified Cremo is—don't let its 5-cent price stand in your way. Your physician will recommend a mild cigar in place of heavy, expensive brands. There isn't a bit of scrap in Certified Cremo . . . not a trace of floor sweepings. All long filler . . . all fresh, tender leaves . . . and topped off with a wrapper that is really fine! Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

EAGLE COACH BUILT FINE ELEVEN

By RALPH GILROY
Former Princeton Star and All America Halfback

BOSTON COLLEGE and Holy Cross ... a ... jammed ... on a fare out ... hard ... Fenway ... last Saturday before a chilly ... brave fans.

In the 26 years of this Eagle and Purple duel no cleaner and harder contested battle has been staged where victory is at stake. Boston College won this year's skirmish by virtue of capitalizing the errors of the Purple players.

The Crusaders ... put through inability of the ... Cross back field performers to hang on to the pigskin when the Maroon and Gold had chalk mark ... yards away.

The Purple eleven was able to get considerable yardage through runs and passes when between the 20-yard lines but once scoring area was reached the Eagle warriors dug in and held back these Purple threats. In a nutshell, that ... the success of this annual Boston College-Holy Cross feud ... opportunities ... to few and far between to be ... side.

In the last half Boston College had one scoring opportunity and crashed through for a touchdown. In the second half Holy Cross ... down to the Eagle five-yard line after a sustained march of 55 yards, but lost the scoring chance through a fumble, and with that error went the ball game as far as Holy Cross was concerned.

It was a heartbreaking thing to see the best running back on the field, Phil O'Connell, the boy who was ... unable ... for saving up the yards to give his team this scoring shot ... commit this costly error.

At that point in the game a touchdown and successful point after touchdown would undoubtedly have given the Crusaders the necessary spark to go on to victory.

As the game developed after this break Holy Cross had to gamble with the aerial game deep in her own territory. It was during this rambling process that Vodnikles, a mighty handy reserve back to have around, got in the way of one of Capt. Stuart Clancy's heaves as he Crusader ... line, and before the surprised Purple player could recover from the shock Vodnikles was behind the Holy Cross goal for the second B. C. touchdown.

Joe McKenney's men were just about ... touchdown operated ... Holy Cross ... day's game was played. Supposed ... have one of the strongest ... elevens in years, the Purple players were a disappointment to Cleo O'Donnell and the Holy Cross rooters.

The Crusader athletes played a stubborn defensive game and fought it out every inch of the way, but there was a lot ... to be desired in the functioning of the Holy Cross offense.

There was something ... about the precision and timing of the Purple's ... Notre Dame offense. The ... of the Purple play ... was ragged and half the time a Crusader back couldn't get back to the line of scrimmage with the pigskin.

Saturday's struggle again demonstrated the oft repeated assertion that a rugged rush line by continually applying the pressure can make the opponents commit errors. Boston College didn't go into Saturday's game with any idea of making a sustained offense to win the game.

The Eagle strategy was rather to use Johnny Dixon's powerful toe to keep Holy Cross back in their own territory, let the Worcester outfit do the offensive stuff and wait for the breaks.

The breaks came to Boston College through fumbles, but were caused by hard rush line pressure and fierce tackling. The Eagle wing men, Dixon and Murphy, and what a sweet pair of ends these two were, Pete Herman and Downes, the Eagle snapper back were swarming all over the Purple backfield ... all afternoon.

Saturday's battle had a distinct Bracketon flavor. Capt. Paddy Creedon of the Maroon and Gold eleven, and Phil O'Connell of the Purple delegation, were two of the best halfbacks in the game. Capt. Paddy did a nice job in directing the Boston College offense which led up to the first Eagle touchdown and finally carried the ball over the goal line himself.

O'Connell, playing his first season on the Purple varsity, showed himself to be a sweet running halfback. This boy will have two more cracks at the Eagle and will cause them a lot of trouble before hanging up his Purple uniform.

Joe McKenney, the Boston College mentor, deserves a lot of credit for bringing along an inexperienced squad and molding them into a fast clean fighting outfit. If there ever was any argument about Joe's abilities as a coach, they should be dispelled by the demonstration of heads up football given by his men out on the Fenway turf last Saturday afternoon.

MR. BOSTON — by JACK CONWAY

"I SUGGEST," said Mr. Boston ... that ... and ... of ... are to play any more of their annual games with Holy Cross under such weather conditions as prevailed on Saturday.

And ... who sat through the ... at Fenway Park, his spirit ... to accompany Commander Byrd on one of his Arctic expeditions.

I believe it would be a good idea to transfer Boston College-Holy Cross games of the future to Miami, Fla. They could be staged about the time the New York Garden holds its annual Newspaper feature. The football players could make pocket money by acting as sparring partners for the mitt wielders.

"I was glad Boston College won for the sake of Joe McKenney. They tell me that Joe was slated to walk the plank out at the Heights merely because his team happened to lose a couple of football games.

"The victory over Holy Cross will enable McKenney to remain at Boston College if he cares to do so. Otherwise he can land a good berth with some other college.

"Our American colleges are victory mad. They won't tolerate a coach who cannot win all of the time.

"No coach can turn out a star team each year. Our college graduates and students should learn to take the bitter with the sweet.

"Nobody suggested firing Connie Mack during the years he was rebuilding the Athletics. More patience and less free advice usually is good. Just as ... as it reads, is needed to quell the cry for victories in our schools of learning.

"And how it was a great year for the boys who live to be on the shady side of 30. Boston College-Holy Cross and Harvard-Yale games gave this element plenty to cheer about.

"Jack Sharkey has been tuning up at Jim Toland's Gym for the past week, in preparation for his next bout, which will take place at Miami, Fla., in February. It should not be hard for Sharkey, Johnny Risko, his manager, and Tom Pulsola, his trainer, to start for the land of sunshine with merry blasts beginning to sweep the ...

"Sharkey's opponent for the Miami affair will not be selected until after the first of the year. The Phil Scott-Otto Von Porat bout in New York a week from tonight will tend to clear up the situation. Other developments if the winner of this tussle comes through in sensational style he will be signed at once to tackle Sharkey. In the event of a dull match the victor will be tossed in with Tuffy Griffith, who tamed Paulino in Chicago on Friday night.

"Griffith is a stiff puncher and aggressive. His win over Paulino didn't mean a great deal ... The Basque showed up in fine ... with Max Schmeling, but ... line that he is all washed up as a star performer.

"Sharkey has been rooting for Schmeling to return to the United States in time to meet him at Miami, but it doesn't look as though the German would return here before next summer.

"Atlantic City promoters ... a couple of matching ... with the winner of the Scott-Von Porat mill for a ... Both ... have ... of the ... ing through as Herr Max would have any part of the British Dominion. Madison Square Garden Corporation also has contracts which it says will prevent Schmeling from boxing for any promoter until he first shows under its direction.

"Andy Callahan and Jake Zeramby did much to put new life into the boxing game in Boston. A series of unsatisfactory bouts had the sport in a bad way in this city until these two youngsters stepped into the Garden ring and blazed away at each other like a couple of champions.

"Callahan reminds me a great deal of the agressive, pawching Mickey Walker who made his Boston bow eight years ago. Andy has plenty of color and should go a long way up the pugilistic trail.

THE RUN THAT RUINED THE ARMY

The above photo shows Jack Elder, Notre Dame left halfback, starting his 98-yard run in the second period of the Notre Dame-Army game for the only touchdown of the game. Army had the ball on the Irish 13-yard line when Cagle heaved a pass to Carlmark at the goal line. Elder grabbed it, and not an Army man touched him on his thrilling dash down the field. Grid Stars in Legion Game

Two of the outstanding players in the New England all-star college football game Saturday afternoon at Fenway Park for the benefit of the veterans' Christmas relief fund of the Crescup-Pushon Post, A. L. will be Hal Booma and Teg Cole of Dartmouth.

The distinguished linemen wired from Atlantic City that they will be delighted to give their services to help make the game one of the greatest gridiron spectacles that Boston ever has staged.

Acceptances already have been received from Creedon, Murphy and Herman of Boston College; Cleney, Alzerini, Kucharski and Manfreda of Holy Cross; Dincolo and Carne of Boston University; Guarnaccia, Hasseltine and McLeod of Middlebury; Tansey of Norwich; Ellert, Maun, Cox and Brackley of Massachusetts Agricultural College; Shea and Bianchi of the University of New Hampshire, and Gibbons and Zande of Providence.

Within a few days the Legion officers expect to have a complete list of every senior who has volunteered his services and the post guarantees to have every advertised player on the gridiron at some stage of the contest.

The Legion has arranged to give the public first call on the reserved tickets which means that it will be the first time that the fans who give the game of football their general support will have an opportunity to watch the outstanding players perform from the choice seats.

Invariably the good tickets to the big college games go exclusively to the alumni. John Public and his brothers will be the alumni for this game.

Eddie Casey of the Harvard coaching staff and Bunny Corcoran, end coach at Holy Cross, have been assigned to Arthur Sampson to handle the coaching details of one team, while Joe McKenney will announce the identity of his assistants tomorrow. In any event Bill Ormsby, the former Brown player and present end coach at Boston College, will be one of them.

DICK HANLEY TURNS DOWN COLUMBIA

ONE of the coaches who has been interviewed by the Columbia Athletic Association as a possible successor to Charlie Crowley is Dick Hanley of Northwestern.

Hanley arrived in New York last Friday from Chicago and was in conference with the Lion authorities. He was offered a very tempting salary but refused to accept.

While coaching the Haskell Indians, Dick Hanley established a nation-wide reputation. He took over the head coach berth at Northwestern two years ago and although he has not won a Western Conference championship, in the eyes of the powers that be at the Evanston institution, he has met with great success.

Until Dick Hanley went to Northwestern, the Wildcats had never won from either Ohio State or Illinois, but they have twice won from the Buckeyes and this season took the Fighting Illini into camp.

"There are only three cities in the country where I would coach football, San Francisco, Chicago and Boston," said Dick when asked regarding the chances of his going to Columbia. "I would have liked to have taken over the Boston College berth when I was approached a few years back but conditions were such that I could not accept.

"But, if there is ever an opening in Boston, I will jump at the opportunity to go East."

During a football pow wow after the Army-Notre Dame game with such coaches as Dick Hanley, "Pat" Spears, Tom Keady, "Doc" Sutherland and Eddie Lynch, mentor at Minnesota, the talk drifted to All-American backs and Hanley and Spears agreed that Capt. Lou Wolter of Haskell was one of the greatest players in the country.

Keller is a demon on the defense in spite of the fact that he weighs only 155. Offensively, he is a sensational ball carrier and can kick with either foot and pass with EITHER hand.

Tigers Play Strong Eagle Six Thursday

TIGERS will play only one game this week, meeting New Haven Eagles, the only team in the Canadian-American League that ... haven't beaten, in the Garden Thursday night.

The slack week will be a good thing for the team, which was rolled on to play three games in four days last week. Manager Eddie Powers plans only light practice between now and the tussle with New Haven.

The Gems met a the opening game of the year in New Haven and the Eagles won, 2 to 1, largely due to the goal tending of the spectacular Jakie Forbes.

Since that game, Babe Dye regarded as the hardest shot in hockey when he played right wing for the old St. Pats, has been added to the New Haven roster.

Tigers will have to get along for a week or two without "Ponzi" Conant defense man, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the victory over Philadelphia Saturday night. This means that Bill Regan will have to do all the relief work on defense for Reg Mackey and Eddie Oatman for the present.

Regan has been looking better in every game and is more likely tuned for ball River.

Fall River Downs Pawtucket, 4 to 2

Fall River, Dec 2 Fall River defeated Pawtucket, 4 to 2, in a one-sided Atlantic Coast League match. The goaltending of Findlay Kerr of Pawtucket was the most sensational of the season and his efforts kept down the score. The home squad, Fall River, swarmed all around the opposition, and Pawtucket made few dangerous plays, with the exception of two successful efforts. Best feature ... Fall River.

ELI GRIDMEN TO MAKE MERRY

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 2 Yale University's 28 football players who have won their Y's this fall will leave here in a body next Saturday to attend the ... annual "Win, Lose or Draw" party and reunion in New Roberts' old Yale barn in Montclair, N. J.

... players headed by Captain W. W. (Pike) Greene and Captain-elect Francis T. (Fat) Vent, will be accompanied to the ... by Coach Mal Stevens, the entire coaching staff, and T. A. D. Jones, chairman of the football committee.

More than 300 Yale alumni are expected to be on hand to greet the Eli warriors in Montclair. Applications from Yale men have been received for more than twice the seating capacity of the barn and ... over-subscriptions are now being turned by the committee in charge. Among the alumni will be Robert M. Hutchins, class of '21, president of the University of Chicago, winner of the Montclair Yale bowl, which each year is presented to a Yale alumnus who has won his "Y" in life.

Avoid Rigid Stance, Advises Golf Champ

By HORTON SMITH
U. S. North and South, and French Professional Champion

THE golf instructor is confronted constantly with both new and old problems presented by his pupils.

In spite of the bewildering variety of faults that one is asked to diagnose and attempt to cure, a few much commoner than the rest fundamental errors, one ... crop ... which stand out conspicuously above all others.

According to my experience and that of other professionals, beginners usually have one or other of the following faults: (1) either the player adopts too stiff an attitude, or else (2) he or she is too loose and "floppy." These are cardinal errors, and each should at all costs be avoided.

In the present article I propose to confine myself to the "stiffness" fault. It is quite extraordinary how many beginners have a natural tendency to ultra-rigidity of body, arms and wrists when trying to play golf. They appear to imagine that everything must be tightened up to the last degree.

Sometime ago I had one particular pupil, and it was really agonizing to observe the manner in which he addressed the ball. He gripped the club so violently in the palms of the hands that the fingers seemed to be numbed and paralyzed. The legs were as taut as two scaffold poles, the body and neck seemed as if they were encircled by immense chains.

And if his whole attitude was painful in the address, it became even more unhappy as the club was taken back to the top of the swing. The left arm was completely rigid and there was not the faintest degree of relaxation anywhere.

His feet remained solidly on the ground; the little bit of pivoting action of the body from the hips required in the left shoulder being higher than the right when the club was at the top.

The club's return journey was equally a travesty. Down it came all of a piece, the body being as rigid as ever and the hands holding the grip as if the club weighed a ton.

The actual shot was, of course, a complete and utter failure, for at the moment of impact the club was travelling far above the centre of the ball. In fact the player only succeeded in perpetrating the vilest of topped shots.

On calling the pupil's attention to his extreme rigidity, he said that he was quite unaware that he was committing any such fault. He thought he was trying to swing quite normally!

Needless to say, I very soon enlightened him as to the true state of affairs, and after a few further lessons, I managed to get him to relax.

This tightening-up process is a very bad fault, and, once it becomes engrained in the golfing swing, is very difficult to eradicate.

That is why one sees so many hundreds of players on the links who, though long since out of the novice stage, continue to play with much rigidity in golf.

There is no rhyme or reason in tightening up the body, arms and legs to such a degree that all the joints and "hinges"—the very things that generate power and speed of club-head—are virtually put out of commission.

The temptation to play golf in such a manner is not infrequently due to nervousness in hitting the ball. "Straightness at all costs," becomes such a fetish that the player ... the extraordinary handicap ... natural freedom of movement.

The idea of tension is entirely erroneous, for it is one of the most noxious form of rigid hitting that takes all the real joy out of the game.

Most certainly we ought to make the utmost use of our joints when hitting the ball, and particularly in the long shots in which we are striving for distance. Watch Bobby Jones or any professional.

You will never find them paralyzing hitting power by unnaturally stiffening all the muscles and joints. They play shots firmly but there is a wide difference between playing firmly and playing stiffly.

EL BRENDEL IS FUNNYBONE TICKLER IN "SUNNYSIDE UP" AT KEITH'S

NEW FILM PACKS 'EM IN

The Cast

Mollie Carr	Janet Gaynor
Jack Cromwell	Charles Farrell
Jane Worth	Sharon Lynn
Eddie Rafferty	Frank Richardson
Eric Swenson	El Brendel
Rev. Nicholas	Marjorie White
Joe Vitto	Joe Brown
Mrs. Cromwell	Mary Forbes
Raoul	Alan Paull
Luke	Peter Gonsthorne

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WHEN you're in the dumps, please send an airplane to fetch in El Brendel. Or takes us up to Keith's to see him in "Sunnyside Up." He'll be a sure cure for any blues. And if it be that you like to see the shopgirl's dream come true, with a rich young man coming to make her his bride, you, too, will be delighted; and then to gether we may spend a most enjoyable few hours, getting an eveful and an earful.

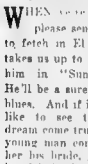
MR Brendel's splendid comedy work is not the only point about Keith's that is reminiscent of the visit of "The Cock-Eyed World." Another is the crowds — the patrons were coming in droves. And inside the palatial playhouse the reception was enthusiastic, with applause, uproarious laughter and what-not. So apparently "Sunnyside Up" hits the public square.



Janet Gaynor

Ively between the eyes on the funny-bone, in the sentimental solar plexus region, and with a wow on the pocket-books. All of which led us to attempt an analysis of this picture's strong appeal; our findings are these. It gets all lovers of fun because of that provocative Scandinavian, Mr. Brendel. It gets folks of all ages because of the magnificent atmosphere of "homeyness" David Butler, the director, has worked through long sequences. We refer to the Park Side scenes, the frequent use of real, and not just stagey children, the life of common folks. Then lastly, for the flappers the film has that sure-fire magnetism of the Cinderellas and her Prince Charming story.

"SUNNYSIDE UP" is billed as musical comedy, but it is rather to be called excellent comedy with musical trimmings. As such it takes rank among the clean, attractive offerings, humming with entertainment. If songs are very tuneful several are already popular. In most such movies the lyrics are just dragged in by the heels; here, however, deft hand has made them seem a part of life's logic. The dances, thanks to the peppy and capable Marjorie White, and her aide, Frank Richardson are rare treats.

OUR refraining from mention of the two stars thus far has been deliberate. Of course, Mr. Farrell and Miss Gaynor have a tremendous following, and their fans will flock to see them whatever their vehicle. But Sunnyside Up" is a generously lengthy production, in which stars are not the whole show by any means. Theirs is the love yeen, chiefly; and Miss Gaynor pictures superbly, especially in the close-ups. Her soft-toned singing is mighty pleasant to listen to; but she is not by any means a great singer. Nor is Mr. Farrell, though his voice is pleasing. They are very appropriate in handling the time-worn fairy tale plot. Miss Gaynor is best in action always when silence reigns, and Director Butler sees to it that she gets such chances to show the glory that was here before she got into the talkies.

"LA GIOCONDA" opens the season for the Boston Opera Company tonight, with Lissetskaya in the title role. The performances are at the Boston Opera House.

MAGIC PRINCE HEADS BILL

BLACKSTONE, the noted magician, and the film feature, "Big News," share the honors on the Keith-Albee bill this week, Blackstone presents a program that is so full of interesting novelties that the old school magician could not compete with him. He wears no veil of secrecy and appears in ordinary tuxedo, takes his audience into his confidence and continually calls on children for their advice.

The vaudeville program also includes the three Alexander Sisters known as "The Sweethearts of Vaudeville," and Fred Lightner, brother of the successful Winnie Lightner of vaudeville and talking pictures, in a comedy skit which he has titled "A Fool There Is." There are other good acts, too.

For film fare, Robert Armstrong, stage and screen favorite in a new "Big News," an all-talking picture in which Armstrong portrays a newspaper man who makes life interesting for a gang of crooks whose secrets he stumbles upon in trying to run a story to earth. As a result, he is involved in a murder and before the mystery is solved, there are moments of thrills and suspense.

WRITES BOOK ON MOVIES

WILLIAM DEMAREST, senior member of the producing firm of Demarest & Lohmuller, sponsors of "Woof Woof," the musical offering at the Majestic is going to have a new distinction after the first of the coming new year. It is that his daughter, Phyllis Gordon Demarest, is to have a book published by Beaulay Company in January. The new opus is titled "Hollywood Gold," and is the result of material gathered while her father was making motion pictures for a season or two prior to his present appearances in New York as a comedian, and his decision to become a producer. This will be Miss Demarest's second book accepted for publication, although she is but 20 years old. The previous one was another revelation of the picture colony and was called "Children of Hollywood." The publishers predict the second work will surpass the first.

MORANS APLENTY MADE GRADE WITH CROWS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—Did you ever know that Charlie Mack has had nine Morans in his life? Never was so surprised in my life to hear that while the name, Mack, is permanent and a fixture, the Morans come and go. The name is copyrighted, it would seem, and any time Charlie Mack wants to change his partner he engages an actor and immediately fastens the moniker of "Moran" on him.

The Morans are now being changed. George Cires played the part of Moran in "Why Bring That Up" and Bert Swor will be Moran in "Two Black Crows in the A. E. F." Both actors are under contract to Charles Mack and it is optional with him which one he uses. I'll wager plenty of men who are teamed with other actors often wish they had a substitute in the offing.

THE old team of Beranger and De Mille is being revived in "The Mad, Mad World," a story of Alsace-Lorraine. Revived inasmuch as Clara Beranger has translated the play for her husband, William De Mille. However, Arthur Caesar is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot doing the adaptation. The story is one of those tricky things that needs nursing and hot house attention, and Caesar, whose meller is wisecracking, is said to have written some brilliant dialogue. Kay Johnson, who did so well for Cecil De Mille in "Dynamite" will play, while Basil Rathbone, English actor, smotes opposite her. Looks as if the hero will be English.

"HIGH SOCIETY BLUES" is some title. Am I right? It is the name of a story by Dana Burnit that appeared in a weekly magazine and tells the tale of a middle-Western grocer whose family is snubbed by New York high society. So far so good, but that isn't all. It has songs and lyrics and what have you, written especially by James Hanley and Joseph McCarthy. Now would you think this kind of a story would have music? Well, you can never tell nowadays. David Butler will direct and Al Boasberg is in charge of production. I hear tell May Clarke and David Garrick are favorites mentioned for the leading roles.

I HAVE happened to hear more about Jeanette MacDonald than any of the stage actresses who were brought to Hollywood during the talkie rush. I suppose because she happened to have her share of good looks and also a pleasing personality. Anyway, Miss MacDonald just included in the list of girls who are returning East. She stays with us and her next picture is "Let's Go Native" for Paramount with Skeets Gallagher and Jack Oakie playing opposite her. It's an original by George Marion, Jr., with music by Dick Whiting. And now, hold all, that youthful and popular director, Eddie Sutherland, will direct.

IN one of her characteristic wires Anita Loos announces that she will be here December 10. The telegram was sent to Wilson Mizner and adds some: "Dear Uncle Willie: I am arriving in time to bring you a zipper so you won't catch cold when the water snow reaches Hollywood."

From other sources we learn that, accompanying Miss Loos will be Carol Reston, young Fox juvenile who will spend two weeks here as her guest. All I know about Mr. Reston is that he is an Englishman whose modernistic photographs and sketches appeared in the London Sketch and that he belongs to society. He is bringing out a book of beauty and if he hasn't completed the work we can assure him he will find plenty of copy right here.

THE studios are just waking up from their turkey and cranberry indigestions and are now too active. We did hear a little chatter. Wilfred Lucas, old time actor, who is in Hollywood for the first time in some years, has landed himself a job at the James Cruze studios in "Clipped Wings." Howard Hickman, who used to be associated with Mr. Lucas in the old Triangle days, is in the same talkie. There isn't a reckon, have much to talk about. George Archainbaud is to direct a series for R K O. The first of his pictures is "Framed." Corinne Griffith leaves next week for the Yosemite Valley on location. Just a few snow scenes as a what First National wants.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Wilson Mizner entertaining Frank Fay, Ricardo Cortez, George McManus and others at the Brown Derby. . . . Has some cheerful tales. Ruth Taylor and Elise Bartlett Schildkraut planning a bridge game while eating at the Brown Derby. Jack Gilbert calling on his wife Ina Claire, at her Beverly Hills home. Hedda Hopper being invited to wear a new dress of especially designed silk by a New York firm. Carmelita Geraghty rehearsing for a play in Los Angeles. Blanche Sweet and Danny Dunker accompanied by Blanche's grandmother, taking in the sights at Long Beach. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

BILL DOUBLED FOR PARK

THE Park this week has another double feature. Foremost is Ina Claire, stage star who makes her screen debut in a celluloid version of her great success, "The Awful Truth." This picture produces the bride of John Gilbert to the motion picture public. The story of "The Awful Truth" tells of a man and wife who are madly in love, yet who encounter the snares of jealousy, pride and selfishness. Miss Claire is supported by a cast of stage and screen players of ability, and the production was staged by Marshall Neilan. The noted English actor, Henry Daniell, who made his American debut with Ethel Barrymore, is the leading man.

The other feature is a comedy

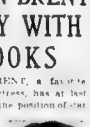
EVELYN BRENT FILM TRICKY WITH SPOOKS

EVELYN BRENT, a favorite talkie actress, has at last been raised to the position of star after several years of creditable screen work. "Dark Red Roses," at the Jefferson, with Mae Busch and Regis Toomey, is the production in which Miss Brent is starred. It is a mystery melodrama based on the various psychic manifestations of Emma Jago (Nell Hamilton), with whom Miss Brent as Ella, fails in love.



Nell Hamilton

Jago enlists the aid of Ella as a "medium" for the seances which he conducts at the homes of wealthy clients for big fees. She goes into the scheme in a half hearted way and when his work brings grief to one of his victims she decides to teach him a lesson that will cure him of his zeal for the supernatural racket.

By a piece of neat trickery Ella manages to convince Jago that it does not pay to play with the emotions of the spectral world.

The play is tense with the thrills of clever mystery tricks, and the interest is held high throughout.

FILM LEADER, STAGE'S BEST, AT SCOLLAY

"The Virginian" a classic of American literature and of the American stage presents itself for the screen by Paramount as an all-dialog picture, and as a typical vaudeville show are the standing features of the week's entertainment there is no lack of Scollay. The principal attractions seem to be the performing horses of Mlle. Rasch and Mme. Beam. If both Miss Rasch and Mme. Beam are Walter Huston. One or the other, for the picture is full of horses and Helen Ware.

Among the lesser things that are to be seen in connection with the show are a singing and whistling cowboy and a trained hollering cowboy, a spectacular round up, an Indian dance staged with sound, three hundred stampeding cattle swimming a swift, flowing river, a mongolitic stallion by a herd of cattle; an old time Wild West gambling house in full blast, and a broncho-busting feat.

The week's vaudeville is headed by the Johnny Pastine Revue, with Fedor Mayhohm and his Recording Russian Orchestra, featuring Jack and Ora dancers. Other acts are T. ge Mason, cowl spinning expert; Smith and Dale in Park Memories; K. T. Kuma and Company in a fantasque Japanese divertissement; Bill Miller and Nat Petersen, billed as the boys who made "String Bull" stand up, and Harry Adler and Mary Fair in a comedy sketch called "Dizzy 1929," with Miss Fair doing a feature dance called "Broadway Mood."

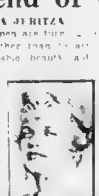
WOMEN TURN TO NATURE FOR BEAUTY AIDS

Orange Found to Be Best Friend of Complexion

By MARIA JERITZA

MODERN women are turning to Nature, rather than to artifice, for invaluable beauty aids. And one modern discovery is that of the orange. Of all fruits, it is the best friend to the complexion. In this respect oranges share honors with lemons, another fruit of the citrus family.



Maria Jeritza

Both orange and lemons possess valuable mineral elements, which give purity and richness to the blood, heighten color in the skin, and lend lustre to the hair. All oranges are highly endowed with precious vitamins which are supposed to bring beauty and energy.

In order to get the greatest of their vitamins, however, oranges must be eaten when ripe, or freshly cut into, as on put-up juice that you can buy. Squeeze orange juice and get the full benefit of its beauty-giving properties. Within a few weeks after [illegible] orange juice makes a delicious, cooling beverage. I suggest that you partake freely of oranges and indulgent orange juice, each and every day of the year.

Half a dozen oranges a day, each day for three months in addition to her ordinary diet, is said to have [illegible] watch on chewing blubber at the North Pole.

A simple age and how we like to talk about it . . . just as if we invented it all ourselves. BUT REALLY, IT DOESN'T DO US A DARNED BIT OF GOOD UNLESS WE CAN DUPLICATE THOSE MIRACLES IN OUR OWN HOME.

You may circle the world in 30 minutes but still you aren't getting anywhere UNLESS YOUR IMAGINATION CAN GO FAR AS THAT AEROPLANE. If you, for instance, stay at home in Evansville, wondering about the price of potatoes, or the latest "School gossip," you might as well not be moving.

You have the radios, television, and the distance phones. BUT UNLESS YOUR INTERESTS AND SYMPATHIES ARE ALSO IMMENSE THEY WON'T DO YOU ANY REAL GOOD. They may be fascinating, but they won't [illegible] you. The bounds [illegible] end.

Machines can transport your body, fill your ears with sound and your eyes with sights. But they can't change your life. YOU'RE AS FAST AS YOU FEEL AND FAR AS YOU THINK. If you don't feel all foreigners are funny, or you can't understand anyone who doesn't belong to your own town, or if you [illegible] to change and are afraid of [illegible] you're not FAR in space or time and distance.

[illegible] end of "being modern." BUT HOW MODERN ARE YOU? Edison can't make you modern, neither can Wright brothers. Only you yourself can make you modern. You can only THINK aborigine or ARE aborigine.

Day Costume for Groom

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to be married soon at a nuptial mass. I would like my bride to wear a veil. Since I am rather small to wear the regular morning attire is it not proper for me to wear a Tuxedo?

2. When the engagement takes place, what are the arrangements for the meeting of both families?

3. I am living with my aunt, my mother is dead. My father is in Europe. Is it necessary for me to arrange a meeting between my aunt and my fiancee's parents, or should my fiancee arrange for such a meeting?

4. Should the father, when giving his daughter away, wear a Tuxedo or is a blue business suit suitable?

B.

NO. No, indeed. If you wish to have your bride correctly dressed, then you, too, must be correctly dressed. Thats only fair—isn't it? And to be correctly dressed for a formal day wedding the groom must wear formal day clothes, cutaway coat and dark striped trousers. Everything is wrong about wearing a Tuxedo. To begin with, it is evening attire—not to be worn in the day time; and also it requires informality, not the formality consistent with a formal bridal attire.

3. When the young man has been accepted, he tells his family, or whoever represents his family (in your case, your aunt), and that person goes at once (within 24 hours), to call on the bride and her mother. [illegible] important [illegible] of the coming into the family, and should not be postponed.

3. You should arrange for this meeting of you and your fiancee's parents, or at least her mother.

4. The bride's father should also wear formal day clothes: cutaway coat and dark striped trousers. The Tuxedo suit is, as I explained in the first answer, out of order. If the father will not wear the cutaway suit, a dark blue suit is better than a Tuxedo.

This Modern World

Your Costume Must Be in Harmony With Your Complexion

YOU can wear almost any color these days with the aid of the makeup box. A little more rouge on the cheeks, a little lighter color on your lips, a darker eye shadow, powder that deepens the skin tones—all of these things tend to change and to accent your complexion. But even though you apply the pastes and rouges with deft fingers, certain costume colors are better for you than for others.

If you are very blonde, with very blue eyes and very light hair, be careful of the bright purples—or any very strong color, for that matter. It is inexplainable perhaps, but these shades have a cheapening effect on the fair-haired blue-eyed folk.

On the other hand, these same persons can wear the orchis shades and the paler blue-purples to advantage.

Generally speaking in regard to the purples, the blondes and the persons with very black hair and very white skins, can wear the blue purples. And the rest of the world can wear variations of purple having a rose cast.

GREENS are becoming more popular—not the billiard table green, but a bright shade which has a grayed enamie look, and also a shade called the 'Maggy Rouff' green, a bluer green than hunter. These are promised a vogue next spring. And who can wear them best? First of all the red-haired women. Green always has been their color.

Besides this large group, however, these colors will look well on the vivid brunettes and the persons with hazel eyes. The latter will wear the darker Maggy Rouff green extremely well. For the old rule is generally quite true; that you can wear best the colors that match your eyes. But like most rules there are exceptions. Along with the color of your eyes, you must consider the color of your hair.

FOR instance, almost everyone can find a brown tone that is becoming—except the women with gray or white hair. Nothing makes a drab, mouse of a woman look mousier than brown. But for all the rest there are shades to suit. The brunettes will wear particularly well the very dark, blue-browns of the season. The warm browns they should avoid. Also these same folk can wear the beiges. Persons with red in their hair will wear becomingly every shade of brown that there is. Blondes, like the brunettes, must stick to the blue-fox brown (or the newer Patou brown) and the beige shades.

The reds this season are generally flattering; there is so much rose in their tones. But a new, brilliant, lacquer shade, called "Chippendale" red, is predicted for spring. The girl with green eyes, a very white skin and chestnut hair will probably find this color best suited to her.

FOR evening, the most fashionable color is white, a dead white which emphasizes the sunburned complexion acquired in summer. At the opening of the opera season it was amazing to see the whiteness of the vast horseshoe interspersed with gowns in black worn by the older, more conservative women.

Black is so dignified, so elegant, that generally speaking it is worn with most becomingness by the white-haired matron and, paradoxically, by the youthful blonde. White, on the other hand, is lovely on most persons, except the ash blondes. They need soft pastel shades, not too dull nor yet too bright, the light blues—if their eyes are blue—the soft pinks and greens.

AN AUTHENTIC BIOGRAPHY

The Life of Mary Baker Eddy

Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science

by Sibyl Wilbur

A HIGHLY interesting chronicle based on exhaustive and unprejudiced research. It is devoid of invention but is abounding with facts.

The book tells of Mrs. Eddy's childhood, education, and youthful interest in religious ideas; her long search for a method of healing; her discovery of Christian Science; her writing of the Christian Science textbook; her work as practitioner and teacher, and as founder of a religious movement which under her leadership quickly grew to world-wide proportions.

This life of Mary Baker Eddy was printed in a magazine of popular circulation before it was acquired by The Christian Science Publishing Society. It was written prior to the author's interest in Christian Science, and holds an uncolored, undistorted mirror to Mary Baker Eddy's character and achievements.

This illustration shows Mrs. Eddy's birthplace at Bow, N. H. During her childhood and part of her later life

Mrs. Eddy lived in New Hampshire. Her parents, of Puritan ancestry, had been pioneers in the development of that State.

TIM TYLER'S FLYING LUCK

Tim Is Having a Lively Time

By Lym Young

AS THE PILOT SLIDES OFF THE TOP WING AND SLUMPS ACROSS THE FUSELAGE AND OVER THE REAR COCK-PIT, TIM UNSTRAPS THE CONTROLS AND CLINGS DESPERATELY TO HIS STRICKEN FRIEND
GEE, FOR A SECOND I THOUGHT SURE HE WAS GOING TO SLIDE OVERBOARD
HE'S FAINTED OR SOMETHING BUT IF I CAN MANAGE TO PULL HIM INTO THIS COCKPIT, HE'LL BE OKAY
NOW I'LL HAVE TO RUN THE SHIP FROM THE FRONT SEAT—HELLO—WE'RE LOSING FLYING SPEED—WE'RE—— MEAN-WHILE, BELOW, SPUD HAS SUCCEEDED IN UNTANGLING THE MESS OF PARACHUTE CORDS, AND ATTEMPTS SWIMMING TO SHORE WITH THE STRUGGLING AND ALMOST DROWNED JUMPER.
IF YOU DON'T QUIT FLIPPIN YOUR ARMS AROUND I'LL HAVE TO SMACK YOU ONE ON TH' JAW——

MEANWHILE BARNEY REMAINS UNMOLESTED AND WHOLLY IGNORANT OF THIS NEW PLOT TO REMOVE HIM FROM THIS VERY PLEASANT EARTH

CAVEMAN ENDS GRIM BATTLE IN WILDS

By BURT M. McCONNELL

Perrons Landing, Lake Jamos, Quebec, via Normandin, Nov. 30—Fourteen inches of snow just before Thanksgiving, followed by temperatures of 28 and 32 degrees below zero, not only sealed up the Washimeska river and the lagoon near my camp with ice thick enough to bear my weight, but cut off the supply of rabbits, so that the last two days of my bachelor-the-stone-age experiment, like the first two in September, found me without food.

And being without food in such low temperatures is not a comfortable feeling. The spring was frozen up, so I was obliged to dig through inches of ice to get water, and it was necessary for me to have a fire going 18 hours out of the 24.

My plan was to deposit my photographs and articles for District Forester McKibbin to pick up and to spend a couple of carefree days with a rifle borrowed off the Indiana a mile below my camp, hunting moose.

I had been in the north woods without a sight of my family or friends for more than two months, without salt in my food, without, in fact, sufficient game and the necessary proportion of fat to sustain the body properly and create enough heat, without a bath, haircut, or shave, during this time. Moreover, winter had arrived, and my moosehide clothing did not keep me warm, especially when sleeping. So thin ice and weather conducive to snow-blindness were worth risking in the trek back to civilization.

Childish Days

Make Them "Sweet" for EVERYBODY'S Children

A PAMPHLET, "The Doctor Looks at Child Labor," issued by the National Child Labor Committee, calls attention to the fact that that organization is about to observe its twenty-fifth anniversary.

It may also serve another purpose. It may remind us that, in the words of a noble woman whose cheerful verse illuminated these pages for many years:

"No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right."

We note with particular pleasure and encouragement the contributions to this pamphlet of two eminent physicians of New England.

This is from Dr. William R. P. Emerson, professor of children's diseases at Tufts College Medical School:

"A child under 14 should not be allowed to engage in gainful work. An older child should be permitted to work only after he has passed an examination of physical fitness, and only under supervision which will insure types of work and conditions of employment adjusted to his needs."

And this, from Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, P. H., professor of public health, Yale University School of Medicine:

"A civilization which permits the energies of its younger generation to be sapped before their period of maximum production is wasting its most valuable asset."

Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, commissioner of health, New York City, makes the question personal, brings it home, when he says:

"We would not permit the exploitation of a child that is precious to any one of us. Let us not, therefore, as citizens, tolerate the exploitation of OTHER PEOPLE'S CHILDREN."

The most effective plea made by those who urged the rejection of the proposed child labor amendment to the federela Constitution, a few years since, was that this was a matter which might safely be left TO THE INDIVIDUAL STATES.

The success of that plea left upon those who urged it the responsibility of seeing that NO State shall fail in its duty.

HAS there been general improvement, all along the line?

Our own belief is that there is no reason why the friends of American childhood should suspend for even a day their vigilance in the Legislatures.

Which Feels the Burden?

By NELSON HARDING

The weights are equal, but the tax
Is laid upon unequal backs.
For one, it is an easy struggle,
For the other, strain and struggle.

Reduction of his burden can
And should be granted to the man,
Who asks his Government how long
It takes to see and right a wrong?
—N. H.

More Truth Than Poetry

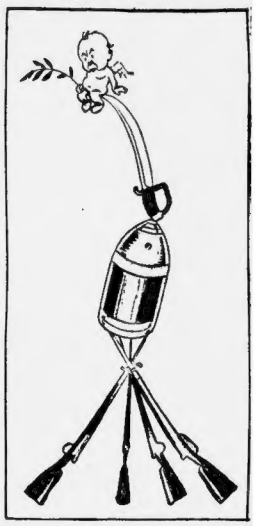
A Worried Peace Angel

(Copyright, 1929)

THIS little picture, which tells a great deal at a glance, is published in the Moscow Isviestia, and has under it the words "Eternal Peace."

The Russian cartoonist shows peace as it is in Europe today, a little cherub balanced on the tip end of a sword, which, in turn, is balanced on the end of an explosive bomb, held up by four rifles, with bayonets set.

It isn't what you would call a PLEASANT perch for a peace cherub.



RUSSIA'S IDEA OF OUR VOLUBLE PEACE TALK

Russia believes that the way to have peace is to be PREPARED for it.

After the downfall and murder of the Czar and the rise of the Soviet government, the nations that had just finished one big war thought they would start another and attacked Russia, in more or less desultory fashion, the United States assisting in a peculiarly silly way.

Some boy bankers in Wall Street were foolish enough to buy the bonds of the Czar at a moment when a microcephalic idiot might have known better. Not satisfied with that, they bought the bonds issued by Kerensky, at about the time he was marrying his lady love in the Winter Palace, and just before Lenin kicked him out.

The Russians easily took care of the attempt to overthrow their government while it was young.

Now they have built up an army of ten millions. They are working hard at industry, building great factories. They are spending seven and a half billions of dollars on a constructive program to run over five years.

They are concentrating especially on the manufacture of airplanes and training pilots. Just to show that they are not idle in the air, they recently sent a Russian airplane from Moscow to New York.

The Russian idea of peace is, on the whole, a sensible idea.

Have your country PREPARED. Keep peace in your OWN heart and respect for your power in the hearts of others.

And your little peace cherub will have a comfortable place to sit down.

That's more than he has now in Europe, generally speaking.

Of course, there is always the possibility in Russia today, as in ancient Rome 2000 years ago, of the army taking charge of the government and overthrowing its leaders.

The Russian peasants are dissatisfied. They own their land, which makes them want the czars and grand dukes kept out. But they are not allowed to manage their land and dispose of their crops for THEMSELVES. This makes them discontented.

Their sons are in the army and Boroshilov, the Army Commissar, is none too friendly with Stalin, Lenin's successor at the head of the Russian government.

The rise of the military weapon might some day menace the rule of the Russian Communist Party.

Meanwhile, at least, you will not find any outside nations nagging Russia, or trying again to tell the Russians the kind of government they must have.

The outside world may not LIKE Russia, or APPROVE of Russia, but it does something more important, it FEARS Russia. And fear and respect, in others, are the father and mother of peace in your own dominions.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up at daybreak after hearing a loud noise along the street and it was a fellow, foxed with drink, who kept crying: "Hot icicles, a nickel a quart!" and a constable took him away. Nor could I fall asleep again, so at my labors.

At noontime drove to the Grand Concourse to walk, but the street so torn up with subway building wandered over to the old reservoir, a residential district I never saw before and back to a hotel to meet Edgar Wallace, Englands most prolific mystery story writer and a merry gentleman.

To a cafe for dinner, but could not eat for cupping an ear to hear a man and his wife having a jolly quarrel in the adjoining booth and such language! Then to call on Maybell and Lee Olwell, but they away, and home in the heaviest downpour I ever saw.

Near the old reservoir is a yard in which stands an iron deer. Telephone inquiry develops that such lawn ornaments still have an occasional purchaser in the metropolis. There is one dealer on 23d st. and another in Jersey City. One may also pick up such cast iron what-nots as a crouching tiger, a poised cupid or a robed lady with a wreathed brow carrying a shoulder urn. Most orders come from owners of large estates in the Adirondacks.

The iron deer ranges, according to size from $75 to $60. The last one was sold to a motion picture outfit in Long Island City to be used in a filming scene from the Gay Nineties.

In an Amsterdam ave. curio shop is displayed a collection of those nippe celluloid buttons with which another generation decorated coat lapels. They bore such red tipped sophistries as "O, U. Kid!"

They were given away with cigarettes and peddled at county fairs. There are a few collectors, but only a few. The highest price was $10 for one once owned by Christy Mathewson.

As I recall Bill Geppert had the biggest collection of celluloid buttons in our town. He blossomed out at Sunday School one bright morning with his entire coat braided with them and even had stripes three abreast running down his trouser legs. His implous gesture not only sent him home in a jiffy but won a nice jolt of "strap oil" in the back yard. Bill never amounted to much, either. He became a newspaper man.

Another craze of that happy epoch was collecting souvenir spoons. My aunt had one that came all the way from Glasgow and was on exhibition three days in Gus Rosdell's drug store window. Young girls strung them on ribbons and hung them around dresser mirrors.

Shortly after the spoon fad, prints of the Gibson girl popped into their amazing vogue. The girl with a front porch hammock and a book of these pen and ink beauties stood apart from her sisters. She had what might be known today as "a certain something."

The other week I scanned through one of the old Gibson Girl books and I believe they would have become a fad in any era. No artist since has so deftly caught the spirit of the day as did C. D. Gibson. And his arm has not lost its cunning.

A slightly wearing gentleman in evening dress who had acquired a beaut stopped Bernard Sobel in front of the New Amsterdam. "You don't have to be making out like it isn't different," he muttered. "I don't understand," replied the embarrassed Mr. Sobel.

"Well, think it over," he announced pompously, and lurched on.

"There is mental stimulus in reading a column of bright, informative chatter daily," said Alphonse in an address to Madrid journalists.

That pink glow is a parade of columnists blushing.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

YOU climb a steep and creaking stair
Where smells of grease and smoke
Lie on the dull and stagnant air.
You climb and cough and choke.

Still up and up until, at last,
An attic door you face,
With that grim barrier safely passed,
You gain the sacred place.

So bleak, so bare, it well might seem
Your quest is all in vain;
This room, can it house glory's dream,
Yet scarce keep out the rain?

The painter stands with spattered smock,
Tossed hair and absent eye:
But all these the splendors mock
That on his palette lie.

The splendors that will blossom soon
In wave and sky and field;
You climb a steep and creaking stair.
And genius stands revealed.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

A THING of beauty and a joy forever is a dry congressman with a wet suitcase.

It seems that this case was a scientific experiment with oversize luggage. The people's choice wanted to test his trunk in an effort to get twenty miles to the gallon.

Evaporation in transit is an important item in this restricted dynasty.

And the constant dripping of contraband elixir will wear away the toughest Amendments.

A good Washington drink now seems to be a trunkling hog with a doctor's kit for a chaser.

After having your trunk eviscerated and having thus forestalled an act of Providence or the enemy, you discover that your valet has carelessly packed your socks and collars with your formal headdress powders.

Your luggage is fermenting sweetly on the station platform and you turn to an abstract stranger and boast:

"Have you got a bungstarter? I want to open my trunk."

He is an internal revenue agent with his badge modestly pinned to his spare tire. The reason why he has been following your trunk is because he saw a rainbow over it.

There is some guaranteed unbreakable luggage but no company will insure your trunk against burgling.

The finest bonfire is that which has been aged in the leather and grown a whiskey bouquet on a branch line. But when you make a bonfire out of an alligator be careful of its teeth.

It is an ungrateful trunk that bites the hand that packs it. So don't be surprised when the station agent asks:

"Do you want this trunk checked or analyzed?"

Liquor and the dinosaur are both extinct. But both seem to have left their staggering footprints in the soapstone strata. And even though they nip a congressional trunk once in a while, it's all right if they don't raid the home factory.

Gold and booze are where you find them. And the mother lode cannot compare with the one that father carried.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE middle ear is a narrow chamber filled with air and communicating with the mouth by means of a duct, the Eustachian tube. The walls of the tube are usually pressed flat together, but when the pressure in the middle ear becomes too different from that outside they are forced open and a little air passes one way or the other. This causes the click in the ear which we experience after ascending or descending rapidly in a lift or mountain railway.

H. G. Wells

The walls of the middle ear are strong and bony except in three places; the first and largest of these is the ear-drum, and in the second and third, the fenestra ovalis and fenestra rotunda (oval window and round window). There are even more delicate membranes which separate middle and inner ear.

A chain of three minute bones, prettily jointed together, runs from the ear-drum to the fenestra ovalis; because of their curious shapes these bones are called the hammer, the anvil and the stirrup.

Sound waves, traveling down the outer ear, strike the ear drum and make it vibrate; by means of the chain of bones, the vibrations of the drum are transmitted to the fenestra ovalis.

This elaborate device is partly protective, for the hammer is so jointed to the anvil that if a violent jar occurs, such as a box on the ear, the two are disengaged and the shock is not passed on to the delicate inner structure.

But there is an even more important reason. The inner ear is filled with a watery fluid, and the properties of sound waves traveling in water are very different from those of sound waves traveling in air.

The bones act as levers and reduce the amplitude of the vibrations, but at the same time, by concentrating the energy of the vibrating ear-drum on to a window only one-twentieth of its size, they make the sound pulses more vigorous.

The inner ear is an elaborate labyrinth of passages, embedded in bone and filled with a lymph-like fluid; as we have seen, this fluid is made to vibrate when sounds fall on the outer ear.

A part only of the inner ear is concerned with hearing. The part that concerns us at present is a narrow, tapering tube, about an inch long, which is coiled into a dwindling spiral like the shell of a snail and is therefore called the cochlea.

This cochlea is divided into three compartments by a partition which runs along its whole length. On this partition the sense-cells are situated. The sense-cells bear stiff, hair-like projections on their upper faces, and they are surrounded by the endings of nerve-fibers; moreover, they are placed on an elastic membrane and overhung by a rigid shelf.

When the fluid surrounding the apparatus vibrates, the elastic membrane bounces up and down; this brings the sense-cells into collision with the rigid shelf, and it is their impact with the shelf that stimulates the cells and causes them to dispatch impulses along the nerve fibers to the brain.

According to the theory the most extensively held (for there are differences of opinion here) the method of discriminating between sounds of different pitch is as follows:

The diameter of the cochlea decreases steadily from end to end of the spiral; it is a spiral staircase that dwindles to a point at the top. Since all the air-pressure inside it decreases in proportion, the width of the elastic membrane on which the sense-cells art placed also decreases.

That is to say, since the period of vibration of an elastic body varies with its size, the different parts of this membrane are tuned to different notes.

The apparatus is like a piano or a harp, where the wires give higher notes as they decrease in length. Now, it is well known that if one sounds a tuning fork near a piano, with the damping pedal down, the particular note of the tuning fork is echoed by the appropriate wire of the piano; the pulsations emitted by the tuning fork make a wire vibrate if it is tuned to the same pitch. And in a similar way rhythmical vibrations of the fluid in the inner ear only shake the particular part of the elastic membrane that is tuned to their own pitch.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN'S conscience is always most active in the morning—usually "the morning after."

The tired American business man seems to prefer a raw, undeveloped flapper who is no tax on his mind; but the Englishman still likes his women well-seasoned and slightly mellow.

In Mother's day, either a man's kiss meant a proposal of marriage or the woman's kiss meant an admission of weakness—but now, it's just the other way around.

The hardest thing to understand about all the heroines of the "flaming youth" novels is that while they never go to bed until dawn, yet they are always bright and peppy and right on the job at the office, next morning.

When a man happens to be far from the woman he loves, he can always manage to love the woman who happens to be near—and to keep his conscience clear by thinking of the first, even while he's kissing the second.

Everybody can afford to have the luxuries, these days—but, it all depends on whether your idea of "luxury" is keeping three cars and a valet, or just having ice-cream and clean napkins for dinner, every Sunday.

A woman must have a mission in life; and if she can't "save" a man from some other woman, she'll "save him from himself."

Many a man keeps his wife's photograph on his desk more for moral support than for anything else.

In an argument with a man, the plain, unflattering truth may be the best logic—but it's always the worst policy.

It costs a girl a lot of money for fresh marcel waves, these days, just struggling to prove that she's a lady.
